Say women can work, join its government but under Sharia norms • Announce amnesty for all, say won't seek revenge

TALIBAN'S MODERATE MESSAGING

Safe journey back home

Government officials welcome Indian citizens on their arrival from the crisis-hit Afghanistan by Indian Air Force's C-17 aircraft, at Jamnagar, Gujarat on Tuesday | PTI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE

IN a bid to give the impression that it has changed overnight, the dreaded Taliban militia on Tuesday declared a nationwide 'amnesty' saying it would not seek revenge on those who worked with the ousted Afghan government. "Nobody is going to harm you, nobody is going to knock on your doors," said the outfit's spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid.

In a surprise move, the Taliban said women will be allowed to work and study. It also welcomed women to join its government. The Taliban would honour women's rights, but within the norms of Islamic law, Mujahid said. The comments come amid widespread fear and confusion with desperate crowds thronging airport to escape to safer locations.

The comments marked departure from the last time the Taliban were in power, when women were largely confined to their homes. However, not many believe the militia, which is notorious for its public executions and brutality against women. Some reports said the Taliban fighters have lists of people who cooperated with the government and are seeking them out.

A day after the deadly chaos at the Kabul airport, the capital city remained quiet on Tuesday as the Taliban patrolled the streets and residents choosing to remain indoors fearing for their life.

The Taliban are expected to announce details of their government in a day or two. There are indications that the militia wants to be seen as moderate at least in the initial days by including non-Taliban leaders and women in the government.

Meanwhile, in his address to the nation, US President Joe Biden on Tuesday justified the US troops pullout. "I stand squarely behind my decision. After 20 years, I've learned the hard way there was never a good time to withdraw US forces," he said.

In another development, Amrullah Saleh, the vice president of the ousted Afghan government, tweeted on Tuesday that he is the country's 'legitimate' caretaker president, vowing that he would never surrender to the Taliban. P9,11

US agencies scrub websites to protect Afghan civilians left behind

Washington: Multiple federal agencies that operated in Afghanistan and worked with Afghan citizens have been hastily purging their websites, removing articles and photos that could endanger the Afghans who interacted with them and now fear retribution from the Taliban. The scrubbing started late last week when it became clear that the Taliban would soon take over the country

CCS takes stock of evacuation from Af

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ New Delhi

WITH India managing to evacuate its entire embassy staff from Kabul in what foreign minister S Jaishankar described as a "difficult and complicated exercise", the Cabinet Committee on Security (CCS), the apex body on national security, met on Tuesday under the chairmanship of Prime Minister Narendra Modi to take stock of the situation.

Two C-17 heavy-lift aircraft of the IAF flew in from Kabul with a total of 190 people, one landing in Jamnagar in Gujarat and the other at the Hindon airbase. The C-17 that landed at IAF's Hindon airbase around 5 pm, had around 150 people, including diplomats, officials, security personnel and some other stranded Indians. Besides, France evacuated 21 Indians from Kabul to Paris.

The evacuation happened only after Jaishankar called up US Secretary of State Antony Blinken, sources said.

Sources also said Modi was personally monitoring the evacuation and instructed officials to make arrangements for food and security of the returning people.

At the CCS meeting, Modi directed all concerned ministries to keep a close track of the evolving situation, an official said. Those present included Defence Minister Rajnath Singh, Home Minister Amit Shah, Finance Minister Nirmala Sitharaman, National Security Advisor Ajit Doval and Foreign Secretary Harsh Vardhan Shringla.

There were also reports of evacuated Ambassador to Afghanistan Rudrendra Tandon briefing the meeting.

India has already opened an emergency e-visa facility for Afghans and clarified that repatriation will be done irrespective of religion, the Union ministry of home affairs announced on Tuesday.

Meanwhile SOS calls kept coming in, with the Kerala government requesting help to bring back 41 Malayalis stranded in Kabul. Some messages claimed the Taliban were verifying their identity and taking away their passports and other important documents.

SCHOOLS TO OPEN, BUT WHERE ARE THE BOOKS?

Parents complain of three-month delay; officials say printing, distribution will be completed by September 15

PEARL MARIA D'SOUZA
@ Bengaluru

WHILE schools are getting ready to reopen Classes 9 and 10 from August 23, students are still to get textbooks as Covid-related issues have delayed printing of textbooks, sources said.

"Normally, there is a delay of about a month for textbooks to reach students. But this year, it has been three months since online classes began, but the books are yet to arrive," said Shivanna HP, parent of a Class 9 student from an aided school.

Economically underprivileged students in the school are finding it difficult to catch up because of lack of access to gadgets to attend online classes and absence of textbooks, he said. His daughter receives calls from other students, requesting her to share her notes with them, he added.

A principal of a government school in Halageri, Koppal said his school has created a book bank for Class 9 and 10 students. Fifty per cent of books for Class 9 students have been collected, while Class 10 textbooks are trickling in as students finished their exams only recently. Government schools started book banks after the office of the commissioner of public instruction in Gulbarga division issued an order in July. Students at his school try to share their textbooks, but it is difficult now with online classes, he added.

There are also options like downloading textbooks from the website and reading them on the phone, said Allamaprabhu Bettaduru, state president of All-India Save Education Committee and retired principal. But limited access to smartphones which belong to their parents and reading from a small screen are the problems students from rural areas and those from economically weaker backgrounds are facing, he added.

"The government has allowed examinations and admissions for the benefit of private colleges and schools, and not for learning of students. Now, the government wants to restart classes even before vaccinating students and teachers, and issuing textbooks to students," said Rajesh Bhat, from teachers association.

Commissioner of Public Instruction Anbu Kumar told TNIE that 56 per cent of textbooks have been printed and distribution started two days ago. The delay in printing was because of Covid, he said and assured that 80 per cent of books will be printed and 75 per cent distributed by the month-end. "By September 15, the entire process is scheduled to be completed," he added.

Covid effect on kids marginal, nothing to worry about: Nagesh

Tumakuru: There's no reason to worried about children getting infected with Covid-19 as it's effect on kids is proven to be marginal, said Primary and Secondary Education Minister B C Nagesh on Tuesday. "Over 8.75 lakh students wrote their SSLC examinations in the state. The experts had earlier predicted that it may affect children but have now clarified that it will not," he added. The minister informed that in case a student gets infected, the school will be closed for a week and reopened only after sanitisation. ENS

Yet again, Metro tunnelling work floods hotel, house

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CLOSE on the heels of a street getting flooded in Shivajinagar due to Bengaluru Metro's underground tunnelling, another hotel and house in the vicinity went through the same on Monday night, sending residents and employees into a tizzy.

Tunnel Boring Machine Urja is currently carrying out tunnelling work 60 feet below the ground from Cantonment towards Shivajinagar for the underground corridor in the Nagawara-Kalena Agrahara Line of Phase-II.

Three employees of Hotel Mallik on Shivaji Road were asleep when water gushed inside around midnight, waking them up. Mohammed Irshad, who runs the business with his older brother Mohammed Arshad, told TNIE, "My workers immediately came out of the hotel and alerted me. We informed the contractor and the TBM was stopped immediately. For nearly four hours, they helped us in shifting all our raw material from the ground to safer places above and cleared the slurry and water."

The employees were accommodated in Irshad's house, which is near the hotel. After the incident, the hotel shut shop on Tuesday. "I have given leave to my employees. As of now, I do not know when we can open the hotel again. My brother Arshad will be meeting BMRCL employees to get the details," he said. The house next door has also been flooded, Irshad added. The family could not be reached for their comment.

Slurry entered a hotel in Shivajinagar as a result of Metro tunnelling work

BMRCL Chief Public Relations Officer BL Yeshvanth Chavan said, "The slurry leakage is due to unconsolidated sandy clay strata in this area. Slurry has been cleaned and necessary grouting has been done. The occupants have been safely moved out."

Meanwhile, the house and shop that were flooded on August 11 continue to remain locked.

9 years on, Jakkur rail bridge still hangs fire

S LALITHA @ Bengaluru

EVEN as commuters to and from Jakkur take a jam-packed, circuitous route of over 5 km to reach Yelahanka Main Road, a rail over bridge (ROB), which began work in 2012, is still in limbo. The half-done work by Railways had to be stopped as BBMP was unable to complete the land acquisition process.

The 6,515-sqm land in contention is owned by four families who have taken the BBMP to the High Court over it. "They insist on a much higher compensation than what has been offered by the government and claim ownership of additional land than what is shown in records," said a BBMP source.

The cost of the bridge has shot from ₹13.71 crore to over ₹25 crore over the years. The Railways and BBMP were supposed to share half the initial cost. "The sudden move to convert the proposed two-lane flyover to a four-lane one on the insistence of the then MLA also required more land and delayed it more," said another source. "The additional cost incurred was to be borne fully by the BBMP," he added.

A top railway official said that SWR has completed work in all parts where it was possible to do so. "We have built the bridge above the railway track, two spans on the Approach Road and even the pedestrian underpass here. The precast girders are ready and we can put up four more spans when the land is made available," he said.

The official said it would take six to eight months to finish the project after the land acquisition is complete.

With the matter pending before the court, no one knows when it will be resolved. Among those who have suffered in their daily commute to work is Gayathri, a resident of Nehru Nagar, a software professional at Manyata Tech Park. Explaining her commuting woes, her husband Joshua told TNIE, "If the flyover is readied, she will be able to reach her workplace within 20 minutes. There have been many days (pre-covid) when she travelled nearly an hour via Hebbal and Veeranapalya to reach her office."

Work on the Jakkur Flyover has come to a complete standstill for the last four years

No wastage: BBMP parks may use excess treated water from flats

BOSKY KHANNA @Bengaluru

TO boost generation of treated water and its proper utilisation, Karnataka State Pollution Control Board (KSPCB), has suggested apartment complexes and hotels to send their excess treated water to BBMP parks and playgrounds.

To begin with, the KSPCB and BBMP will take treated water from HM Tropic Trees Apartment and water MG Road park. The water will be taken in special tanks with a specific colour code and marking. This first drive will be held on August 18.

According to records, there are around 1,035 BBMP parks in Bengaluru. The city generates around 900MLD of treated water, of which around 300MLD is in KC Valley. Most of the parks use rainwater and borewell water for greening purposes.

KSPCB Member Secretary Srinivasalu told TNIE that it is just an idea, which if successful, will result in a policy decision. "As per rules and NGT orders, treated water must be utilised for secondary works, so why not extend the same to other areas for harvesting purposes too?" he asked.

"If the suggestion is implemented then policy changes can be made. The BBMP and the state government can also offer incentives apartments giving treated water either financially or recognising them as green apartments or any other thing," he said.

Srinivasalu said ideally large quantities of treated water can be utilised for construction purposes, but builders are apprehensive to use it. "Hence, we have sought IISc's help to test and find out if it is safe. Most builders get the water free of cost, they only have to bear the transportation cost," he added.

"The board is also thinking if agricultural universities can partner with apartment complexes to utilise the treated water for their research purposes and in their areas for sowing. In case of parks, talks are being held with BBMP on the modalities," the KSPCB member secretary said.

Daily Starscope

PETER VIDAL

18th August: It's a Sagittarian day today – by which I mean it's time for all of us to spread our wings and try something new, no matter what our individual horoscopes say. Some of us may decide to take a long journey. Others may go on a voyage of the spirit, through meditation or the arts. I'm not sure what I'm going to do yet. I think I'll wait for the inspiration to come!

ARIES (Mar 21 - Apr. 20)
Like everyone else, you must now wait and see what the next few days' lunar disturbances bring forth in the way of emotional upheaval. One consideration is the likelihood that children are about to demand more of your time. Yet you may be able to put them - and other younger relations - off until next week.

TAURUS (Apr. 21 - May 21)
It's not often that your professional stars are quite so stunning. Is there any way you can prolong your pursuit of a treasured ambition? You're so anxious to keep on the go that even the best sort of break now is one that keeps you reasonably active.

GEMINI (May 22 - June 21)
Mercury's relationship with your sign is always favourable, the inevitable result currently being a series of hopeful family encounters and domestic arrangements. You may be strangely reluctant to leave home over the next few days. But, then, why should you?

CANCER (June 22 - July 23)
Friendships are well-starred, but financial affairs must take first place. When all is said and done, there is no point in making social arrangements if you are unable to pay your way. On the other hand, discussions should have a deliciously positive outcome.

LEO (July 24 - Aug. 23)
You are now in a three-day period of cosmic turbulence. There is no absolute astrological law in operation at times such as these, so it is up to you to maintain a positive outlook and play your hand with skill. Professionally you'll be ready to seek out fresh responsibilities.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)
The same message will have to be repeated for a few days, which is that most of what is important will either take place behind the scenes or lend itself to misinterpretation. Steer clear of ill-intentioned people spreading false and baseless rumours.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 - Oct. 23)
A link between money matters and domestic affairs could mean good news for the home buyer or seller, although it may be another few weeks before the planets are best aligned from the professional point of view. Until then, just begin to gather the information you need.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 - Nov. 22)
There does seem to be a great deal going on at work, even though this might not be the most suitable timing as far as you, or a partner, are concerned. Your best bet now is to bring difficult affairs to a rapid, perhaps ruthless, conclusion. There is now no stopping you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 - Dec. 22)
You may have one or two complaints, today. Perhaps you're not happy with a legal hassle, or you may be inclined to find fault with travel plans. Stick to your principles out of the best of motives, not out of sheer awkwardness. After all, when you're right, you can just make your point, pure and simple.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23 - Jan. 20)
For once you're not the centre of attention. Yet you can strike a dramatic public pose by making acts of extraordinary and surprising generosity. It is time for you to foot the bill. You see, a generous gesture could persuade partners that your feelings are perfectly genuine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 - Feb. 19)
Making the most of stormy astrological influences can be compared with surfing. The goal is to hold your position on the wave, staying just one step ahead of the deluge. You know you can do it. One word of advice - if you're weighing up new options, consider as many as possible.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar 20)
There is plenty of enjoyable social activity available to take your mind off irritations at work. Today's stars may be stressful, but tomorrow's will also be a tad tense, so do try and lighten the atmosphere. I don't think anyone else is going to do it for you.

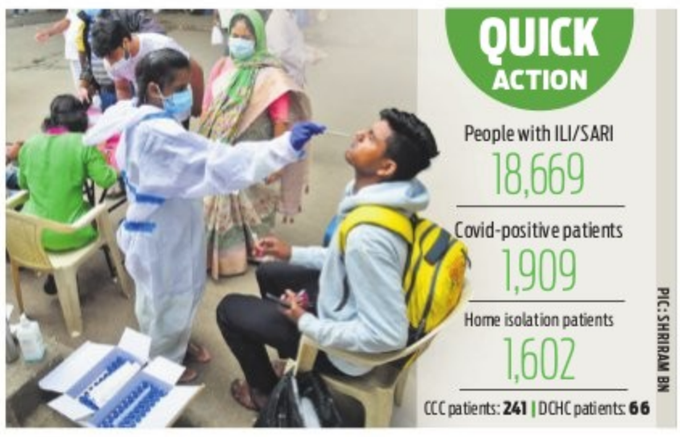
Door-to-door survey finds 19K people with ILI/ SARI symptoms

1,909 test Covid+ve; mobile clinic carrying out checks, village & ward task forces formed

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

IN a sign that a door-to-door survey to identify potential Covid-19 cases is working, Bengaluru Urban district officials have identified 18,669 symptomatic people having Influenza Like Illness or Severe Acute Respiratory Infection. This is as per data available between June 1 and August 15, excluding Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike limits.

Of these, 1,909 persons tested Covid-positive after undergoing RT-PCR and Rapid Antigen Tests. The Covid mobile clinic team, called 'Vaidyara Nade Halliya Kade' referred 1,602 patients to home isolation, 241 patients to Covid Care Centres and 66 patients to Dedicated Covid Health Centres.



"A team of ASHA workers, Anganwadi workers, Primary Health Centre doctor, teacher, revenue department official and rural development official conduct the door-to-door survey. They enquire about any Covid symptoms, and a testing team accompanying them conducts tests on the spot. Based on facilities at home, they are advised home isolation and given a medical kit," said Bengaluru Urban DC J Manjunath.

If patients do not have the required facilities, they are referred to the nearest CCC or government hospital. Village level task forces and ward level task forces have also been formed to keep tabs on the situation.

Areas with the maximum number of positive cases are Bidarahalli with 195 patients, Rajanukunte 145, Kodathi 139, Halanayakanahalli 138 and Kaggalipura 127 patients. Areas with the maximum number of symptomatic people (ILI/ SARI) were found in Sonnenahalli, with 2,630 cases, Tavarekere 1,789 cases, Mandur 1,367 cases, Hesaraghatta 1,004 cases, Sulikere 963 cases and Hebbagodi 914 cases. Bengaluru Urban covers Hebbagodi, Madanayakanahalli, Anekal, Attibele, Bommasandra, Chandapura, Jigani, Chikkabanavara and Hunasamaranahalli. Their target is 5,000 tests per day, and the team is conducting around 7,500 tests a day.

WORRYING SIGN

Travel leading to spike in cases, says BBMP

ENS @Bengaluru

MOST of the Covid positive cases from the city are being reported from the outskirts, and a majority of them have either travel history or have come in contact with those who had travelled, Bruhat Bengaluru Mahanagara Palike Chief Commissioner Gaurav Gupta said on Tuesday.

He said that more cases and containment zones are in the suburbs, like Mahadevapura and Bommanahalli. While citizens are moving around for economic activities, others must avoid going to crowded marketplaces, unless absolutely necessary, he said.

BBMP health officials said this is becoming a trend, and has become a matter of worry. Triaging has shown that most of those who were tested have a travel history and were carriers of the virus.

State will be O_2-ready for 3rd wave: Sudhakar

Health Minister Dr K Sudhakar on Tuesday said the government is taking steps to prevent scarcity of medical oxygen during a possible third wave. "We will not repeat our earlier mistakes. Private firms must increase their production and storage capacity. The government will provide all the required help," said Sudhakar, after meeting oxygen manufacturers. He said that experts have said the third wave will not affect people much, but we still need to take precautions.

Covid throws up challenges for specially-abled kids

RANJANI MADHAVAN @Bengaluru

SURVIVING the pandemic has been hard for many, but for non-neurotypical children — those with neurodevelopmental disorders, the situation is much worse. These include children with autism, sensory processing disorders, hearing impairment, intellectual disabilities, etc.

"They have developed limitations in understanding, coupled with expressive delay and impairments in social reciprocity, which, at times, leads to maladaptive behaviours such as self-aggression. In preschoolers who are hearing impaired or hard of hearing, the mask's straps can be irritating when children already have hearing aids, cochlear implant processors, and eyeglass frames around their ears. Some of the children also have sensory-processing disorders or difficulties, making them overly sensitive to the texture, scent, or pressure of face masks. These unpleasant sensations can magnify their distress and overwhelm their bodies, leading to meltdowns and mask removal," said Dr Ambika S Udupa, Consultant, Development Paediatrician, Aster RV Hospital.

Expressive delays include two factors. The first is language, wherein children are not able to respond, and the second is behaviour, where they are not able to express their needs, such as asking for water, wanting to be carried, etc. Social reciprocity refers to milestones where the child can give acceptable social gestures from a certain age, such as saying hello, bye, etc.

"In the last two years, therapy centres have shut which has deprived the children and their parents of behavioural and occupational therapy. Online therapy is challenging, as these children cannot pay attention or comprehend the training inputs. All these factors have led to aggressive behaviour, not complying with the request of parents, erratic sleeping and eating patterns, etc. The state needs to focus on these paediatric cases as well," said Dr K John Vijay Sagar, Professor and Head of the Department of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, National Institute of Mental Health and Neurosciences.

Their regular or special schools have also been closed. Therapy helps them achieve typical milestones like sitting, smiling, rolling over, etc. It also teaches caregivers how to train the child. With this support system unavailable, the kids are at risk of no progress, or worse, regression of skills.

COVID BYTES

Drive to identify TB in Covid-recovered population

BENGALURU: The State Government launched an active tuberculosis case-finding campaign on Monday and it will go on till August 31. Health & Family Welfare and Medical Education Minister Dr K Sudhakar said that all Covid-recovered patients should undergo TB test. "Since both Covid and TB infect the lungs, we have launched the drive to ensure early detection of TB in people. If detected early, TB can be treated easily," said Sudhakar. Since 2017, 75 lakh suspected Covid cases have been identified and 88% of them have been tested. About 3.9% have been detected with TB. Due to the pandemic, the TB evaluation drives have been hit slightly. ENS

Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai chairs a review meeting of the Higher Education department in Bengaluru on Tuesday

K'taka may pilot NEP in premier institutions

BEd, DEd curricula need to be revised, says CM

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

WITH Karnataka aiming to be the first state to implement the National Education Policy (NEP) 2020, the government is looking at conducting a pilot project at premier institutes. Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Tuesday presided over the Higher Education Department's progress meeting, in which extensive discussions were held over the implementation of the National Education Policy in the state.

During the meeting, attended by Higher Education Minister Dr C N Ashwath Narayan and department officials, it was reportedly suggested that premier educational institutes be taken into confidence and implement the policy there for starters. Guidelines have already been issued in this regard and participants in the meeting are said to have discussed how to go about implementing the policy.

It was also suggested that a Karnataka State Education Commission and other institutional arrangements be made to implement the policy, while also seeking the support of private individuals. The state aims to increase the Gross Enrollment Ratio from 32% to 50%.

The CM is said to have recommended to the Higher Education Department to ensure that there are Technical Education Schools in each district to ensure employment for youth. Bommai said that the state's Bachelor's Degree in Education (BEd) and Diploma in Education (DEd) curricula need to be revised further to make it more effective.

At a separate event, Ashwath Narayana said the NEP gives greater prominence to the study of science and scientific research. He said provisions will be made to teach science in a comprehensive manner. The state is in the forefront in the field of science and this will be continued, he added.

After 13 years, tier-2 cities to get development plans

BANSY KALAPPA@Bengaluru

SEVERAL major cities in the state score low on the livability index mainly due to lack of proper urban planning and unregulated growth. Shockingly, comprehensive development plans (CDP) for cities have not been drawn up for the last 13 years. Taking note of this, the State Government on Tuesday ordered that CDPs be prepared immediately for tier-2 cities like Kalaburagi, Ballari, Vijayapura and Davangere.

Speaking to TNIE, Urban Development Minister B A (Byrathi) Basavaraj said, "I have ordered for the CDP for these cities to be taken up and executed immediately." But it could still be months away as there is first a provisional approval and then final approval for the plans. However, unlike earlier, the CDPs, or master plans, will mandatorily be based on Geographical Information Systems. Town planners insist that a Comprehensive Development Plan is a must for any city and its proper growth. Former director of Town and Country Planning, S B Honnur, said, "Once a CDP or master plan is ready, there will be mandatory land use restrictions. If there is no CDP/ masterplan, there may be no restriction on land use and consequently, development can be haphazard."

Experts point to various instances, especially in small towns and cities, where there is unplanned growth — hospitals or residential areas being located very close to noisy industries or having serious zoning violations. Referring to political interference, they recalled how in one part of Kalaburgi, where there are historical monuments and marshy land, major land use violations took place despite objections from town planners.

"Singapore was a mess about 60-70-years-ago, replete with zoning violations. But thanks to proper town planning and participation of citizens, it was transformed into one of the most beautiful cities. Former CM S M Krishna had planned to develop Bengaluru on the lines of Singapore and a team had even visited that city in 2004," a town planning expert pointed out.

BJP readies its new brand ambassadors

DEVARAJ B HIREHALLI
@ Tumakuru

THE BJP looks to be utilising the 'Jan Ashirwad Yatra', aimed at introducing the four new Union Ministers of State from Karnataka, to project them as next-gen leaders who can strike a rapport with different segments of society in specific regions.

Evidently, the yatras of the Union ministers have witnessed traction wherever they have visited.

Union Minister of State for Social Justice Anekal Narayanaswamy received a rousing welcome at places like Nelamangala in Bengaluru Rural district and Tumakuru on Tuesday.

With slogans of 'Jai Madiga', the SC-Left community members, cutting across party affiliations, took part in the yatra, indicating that they accept him as their community leader. One of the factors which may have worked for him is that he has been unwavering in the demand for internal reservation from within the 15 per cent SC quota. If the government decides to implement the Justice Sadashiva Commission recommendations, the SC-Left community will exclusively get 6 per cent internal reservation.

Union Minister A Narayanaswamy performs 'gau pooja' in Tumakuru on Tuesday

"There is no question of backtracking on internal reservation. I have fought for the cause for several years. But it will be achieved by winning the hearts of all SC communities", he declared at the Siddaganga Mutt here, and it was received with huge applause.

"I was surprised when I was named MoS for social justice. But my three decades of commitment to the party's ideology have paid off," he remarked.

Narayanaswamy migrated to Chitradurga Lok Sabha seat after he lost the Anekal Assembly seat. He is quite popular with the SC-Left community (Madiga) in parts of Old Mysuru, especially Tumakuru and Chitradurga. Interestingly, the community has also started identifying with L Murugan, MoS for Animal Husbandry, who hails from Tamil Nadu, as they consider him as their man.

Union Minister of State for Agriculture, Shohba Karandlaje, who was seen as a replacement for former Union minister D V Sadananda Gowda, got to engage with the Vokkaliga community in strongholds such as Mandya and Hassan where she too reportedly got good response.

Lingayat leader and Minister of State for New and Renewable Energy, Bhagwanth Khuba, took part in the yatra in Bidar, a region dominated by the community. Interestingly, Minister of State for Entrepreneurship, Rajeev Chandrashekar, an entrepreneur himself, went to Hubballi, a business centre, and Uttara Kannada, where former Union minister Anantkumar Hegde has been inactive due to personal reasons.

How this will pay dividends for the BJP in the coming days, specially in the light of the series of elections, remains to be seen.

No proposal to cut fuel price, says Bommai

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Tuesday said there is no proposal before the state government to cut prices of fuel, including petrol, in the state. Responding to a question from reporters if the State Government is considering any proposal to cut petrol prices like Tamil Nadu, Bommai said "there is no such proposal."

After the Tamil Nadu government decided to cut petrol price by Rs 3 per litre, the Opposition Congress had urged the state government to cut fuel prices in the state.

Responding to a question on reports about Covid negative certificates being issued in exchange for money at testing camps, Bommai said it has come to his notice and he will give directives to officials at railway stations or bus stands to take appropriate action.

Respond to Afghan crisis in a humane way: Gowda

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

A day after the External Affairs Ministry set up helplines and said it would repatriate Hindus and Sikhs who want to leave Afghanistan, Janata Dal Secular supremo and former Prime Minister HD Deve Gowda on Tuesday appealed to the Union Government to respond in a "humane manner" to the situation there. He said news reports emerging from Afghanistan show the kind of fear and uncertainty gripping that country.

"It is a difficult moment for India and the entire region. We have to respond in a humane manner, besides developing an independent policy of fostering friendship and peace in our neighbourhood," Gowda tweeted on Tuesday.

The statement from the JDS patriarch comes on a day India managed to fly out the Indian Ambassador and the Embassy staff from Kabul to Jamnagar in Gujarat.

"We are in constant touch with the Sikh and Hindu community leaders in Kabul. Their welfare will get our priority attention," tweeted India's External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar even as efforts were underway in coordination with countries like France and the US to repatriate Indian nationals from Afghanistan.

FLOOD FURY

CM tells officials to repair roads in affected areas

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CHIEF Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Tuesday directed the officials concerned to ensure that the roads damaged in the recent heavy rains and floods are repaired on priority. During a review meeting with the Public Works Department (PWD) officials, Bommai said Rs 300 crore has been released to repair roads damaged due to rains and the work is to be taken up on priority. The chief minister also directed the officials to give priority to the districts with less road density.

The National Highways Authority of India (NHAI) is taking up works worth Rs 1,000 crore and they will hold a separate meeting with the deputy commissioners to expedite the process to acquire lands, Bommai said.

Rural housing project

While reviewing the projects taken up by the Housing Department, the chief minister directed the officials to release compensation to repair houses damaged in the heavy rains and floods.

Bommai said 4.09 lakh houses are being constructed under various rural housing projects. Under Prime Minister Awas Yojana, the work on 1.8 lakh houses is yet to start, Bommai said and directed the officials to take appropriate measures to start the process. Bommai said 43,361 houses have to be completed in Bengaluru under the CM's multi-storey housing project.

Siddu lambasts govt for 'delay' in compensation

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

CONGRESS Legislature Party leader Siddaramaiah on Tuesday hit out at the State Government over delay in providing compensation to people affected by floods. In a letter to CM Basavaraj Bommai, Siddaramaiah urged the government to immediately provide compensation to the flood victims. "Heavy rainfall between July 22 and 26 this year has severely affected the livelihood of many. People affected by floods in 2019 and 2020 are also yet to be given compensation," said the former chief minister, who recently visited flood-hit districts of Bagalkot, Belagavi, Gadag, and Uttara Kannada.

Siddaramaiah said many villages on the banks of the rivers that face the threat of floods are yet to be relocated and residents, who lost their homes, are yet to get houses allotted. "Those who lost homes in 2019 are yet to get compensation and people who moved into rented houses were promised to be reimbursed at Rs 10,000 per month... but it was not done," he rued.

Compensation should be given to people hit by floods in the last three years and roads, bridges, hospitals, government offices, hospitals and anganwadis should be immediately repaired, he demanded. The government should demand its rightful share of compensation from the Centre as compensation released in the last three years is inadequate, he said.

Numbers up, 83 taluks declared flood-hit

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@Bengaluru

THE State Government has identified and declared 83 taluks across the state as flood-hit, 22 more than the earlier estimate, said Revenue Minister R Ashoka here on Tuesday. He said the 22 taluks added to the list are Belagavi, Chikkamagaluru, Hubballi city, Kadur, Davanagere, Dandeli, Alur, Lakshmeshwar, Tarikere, Mundagod, Supa, Hubballi, Bhadravati, Channagiri, Annigeri, Babaleshwar, Nidagundi, Kolhar, Muddebihal, Harapanahalli, Hosanagar and Mudigere. He said the government is taking measures to send out alerts on possible lightning strikes, as many people die every year from lightning bolts. "We are introducing a lightning alert system in select villages. The project has been taken up with the help of the Centre. These warning systems will be installed in select gram panchayats and will be connected with the weather office in Bengaluru," he added.

Whenever there is a possibility of a lightning strike, the system raises an alarm with announcements asking people to stay indoors.

"We will introduce a cyclone warning system in coastal areas. Sirens, which can be heard up to 6 km, will go off whenever there is an alert. We are planning to install the system at 40 places. Each centre costs Rs 10 to Rs 12 crore with funding from the Centre," he added.

The house allotted to Chief Minister Basavaraj Bommai on Race Course Road

It's official! #1 Race View Cottage will be CM's residence

ASHWINI M SRIPAD@ Bengaluru

ABOUT 20 days after taking oath as Chief Minister, Basavaraj Bommai has finally got an official residence in Bengaluru. An official order issued by the Department of Personnel and Administrative Reforms states that the CM has been allotted No.1, Race View Cottage on Race Course Road.

However, it will take a while for Bommai to shift to his new residence as it is now occupied by Higher Education, IT/BT Minister Dr C N Ashwath Narayan. "Ashwath Narayan is asking for a bungalow on Crescent Road. Once he gets a suitable accommodation and shifts there, the Race View Cottage will be painted and the CM will move in," sources told TNIE.

With this, Bommai will join the league of CMs who have opted to reside outside 'Anugraha' and 'Cauvery' — the official bungalows allotted to CMs in the past. In the last 25 years, most of the chief ministers — from H D Deve Gowda in 1994 to B S Yediyurappa till last month — opted for one of these two bungalows, constructed during the British rule. An exception was H D Kumaraswamy, who stayed at his private residence in JP Nagar as CM during the JDS-Congress coalition government in 2018. However, during his first stint as the CM in 2006-2007, Kumaraswamy made 'Anugraha' his official residence. Sources in CMO said that most of the CMs preferred 'Cauvery' over 'Anugraha'. The latter was considered by a few to be unlucky as there was a belief that the occupant will lose the CM's chair. At present, 'Anugraha' is occupied by Lokayukta Justice P Vishwanatha Shetty. Both 'Cauvery' and 'Anugraha' are next to 'Krishna', the CM's home office, on Kumara Krupa Road. Also, the CM can access 'Krishna' from both 'Cauvery' and 'Anugarha' through a walkway without using the main road.

In Karnataka, there is no designated official bungalow for chief ministers. Over the years, CMs have occupied bungalows of their choice. While former CM Ramakrishna Hegde stayed at his private residence 'Krithika' in Sadashivanagar, S Bangarappa and R Gundu Rao stayed in a bungalow on Kumara Krupa Road, which is now occupied by Opposition leader Siddaramaiah. Yediyurappa continues to reside in 'Cauvery'. Bommai, after taking oath as CM, continued to work from his private residence in R T Nagar.

JAILHOUSE ROCKS

Raising the bar: Pay Rs 500, live like a prisoner in Hindalga

NAUSHAD BIJAPUR @ Belagavi

WANT to check out what life behind bars is all about? You could, for Rs 500 a day. And without the trouble of going through a court trial.

Proposing 'A day in the life of a prisoner' as a tourism concept, Belagavi's Hindalga Central Prison authorities have come up with a novel initiative where commoners will be allowed to live a prisoner's life for 24 hours, for a fee of Rs 500. They are now awaiting the government's nod to implement the initiative. Jail officials say the visitors will be treated just like other prisoners – starting from the wake-up call at dawn to the day's routine. The high point of this day out will be dressing up in the prison uniform, getting a qaidi number, sharing cells, eating the same food and joining the inmates in their daily chores like gardening, cooking and cleaning the premises. "Jail guards will wake up the visitors at 5am, after which they have to clean their cell before having morning tea. Breakfast is served after an hour. At 11am, the visitors have rice and sambhar for lunch... the next meal is at 7pm. Once or twice a week, the prisoners are served non-vegetarian food. If the visitors join the inmates on weekends, they will also get a chance to relish special food," jail sources said.

After the chores are done, the visitors will have to collect mattresses and sleep on the floor alongside the others. To make it more authentic, they may also be locked inside a cell.

These jail tourists could even run into some dreaded criminals. The list includes 29 inmates facing capital punishment, including associates of forest brigand Veerappan charged with mass killing, members of the notorious Dandupalya gang, and serial killer and rapist Umesh Reddy. The idea behind the move is to make people aware of the life of inmates, and to hopefully, prevent people from committing crimes.

The SJ Park police have arrested four people and seized 20 kg of ambergris worth Rs 20 crore. "The accused have admitted that they had got the precious product from Malpe beach in Udupi. Further investigation is under way," the police said.

HC concerned over report on land grab

Court says CID investigation does not rule out involvement of members of the Bar and Notary

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Bengaluru

THE CID submitted a report to the Karnataka High Court on the status of investigation into alleged attempts to amass properties in Bengaluru city through judgments and decree fraudulently.

After going through the report submitted in a sealed cover, a division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice NS Sanjay Gowda orally observed that it has very serious ramifications. As observed by the single judge, this petition is treated as public interest litigation. The investigation report does not rule out the involvement of members of the Bar and Notary. The presence of the Karnataka State Bar Council and Advocates' Association is necessary, so implead them as respondents, the court added.

Justice Krishna S Dixit, who passed the order dated November 4, 2020, in relation to a petition filed by Shah Harikak Bhikhabhai and Company to restore possession of the property in question, directed the Registrar of Court of Small Causes to institute a police investigation into the matter and an inquiry against the suspect officials of the court, since fraud and forgery do not happen without the involvement of insiders. It also directed that the order be submitted to the Registrar General of the High Court for taking necessary follow-up action.

Referring to the investigation report submitted by CID in a sealed cover, the court noted that notices were issued by the CID to officials to provide documents of 71 properties. The authorities should cooperate with the investigating agency, the court said, asking the registry to reseal the report and keep it on record.

The court directed the First ACMM court to pass the order at the earliest on the application filed by CID to club two FIRs, registered at Yeshwantpur police station and Ulsoor Gate police station, on the fraudulent transactions. Meanwhile, the court appointed advocate Sridhar Prabhu as amicus curiae in the matter. The next hearing will be held on September 13, 2021.

TAKE STEPS TO QUICKLY NAB RIOTS ACCUSED, NIA TOLD

The Karnataka High Court on Tuesday directed the NIA to take more steps towards quickly apprehending the eight absconding accused in the two crimes registered over riots that broke out at DJ Halli and KG Halli in August last year. A division bench of Chief Justice Abhay Shreeniwas Oka and Justice NS Sanjay Gowda passed the order after perusing the status report of investigation submitted by the NIA in a sealed cover into the two crimes, during the hearing of a batch of PILs.

Couple ends life, leaves note blaming Covid fear

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @Mangaluru

THE fear of being infected with Covid-19 reportedly drove a couple to suicide here on Tuesday. Ramesh and Guna Suvarna, in their forties, ended their lives in their apartment in Kulai. However, a Covid test conducted later revealed that both were negative.

Just before hanging himself, Ramesh called up City Police Commissioner N Shashikumar around 6.45 am, and told him that his wife Guna had committed suicide, and he too would follow her, and hung up. When Shashikumar called him back, there was no response. Twenty minutes later, cops broke into their flat and found both hanging from the ceiling.

Ramesh and Guna Suvarna

In a suicide note, Guna explained that her suffering from diabetes, people questioning them on being childless, and Covid symptoms had pushed them to take the extreme step. DCP-Crime B P Dinesh Kumar told TNIE that prima facie, the couple appears to have ended their lives due to fear of Covid.

However, sources close to the family said the couple was deep in debt and the pandemic had made their situation worse.

5 FOREIGN INMATES FLEE WOMEN'S HOME

ENS @Bengaluru

FIVE women foreign nationals, who were detained at the State Home for Women and were to be deported, allegedly hoodwinked the staff and escaped, in the wee hours of Tuesday. Another woman, however, fractured her leg after she lost balance and fell. Police said two of the women are from Congo, while the three others are Nigerians.

"Around 15 women were detained during a special drive conducted by the East division police recently. The women were charged with violating the Foreigners' Act as they were found to be staying in the country illegally. Hence, they were detained at Santwana Kendra, a state-run women's home. The city police had taken up the matter with the Foreigners Regional Registration Office to deport them," the police said.

The incident took place at around 2.30 am when the women asked the staff for some drinking water. "When the staff went to get water, the six women escaped from the room. Using a ladder and a metal bar, they scaled the security wall, which is about 10 feet and has barbed wire at the top, and escaped. While five fled, the other woman lost balance and fell, fracturing her leg," the police said.

"We have shared the pictures of the escapees with the airport, railway, and bus stations," the Siddapura police, who have registered a case, said.

CBI files FIR against Chandy, others

Sections pertaining to financial exploitation, harassment of woman invoked against accused

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ T'Puram

THE CBI has filed an FIR against five prominent Congress leaders with regard to the sexual abuse allegations linked to the solar scam. The leaders are former chief minister Oommen Chandy, AICC general secretary K C Venugopal, MPs Hibi Eden and Adoor Prakash, and MLA A P Anil Kumar. The name of BJP national vice-president A P Abdullakutty has also been included.

The FIRs were filed before the Chief Judicial Magistrate Court in Thiruvananthapuram and Ernakulam.

Sections pertaining to financial exploitation, corruption and harassment of woman have been levelled against the accused. The FIR against Anil Kumar was filed before the CJM Court in Ernakulam and the rest in Thiruvananthapuram, on the basis of the place of occurrence of the crime.

Crime Branch had first probed the case, but it failed to find evidence to corroborate the woman's allegations. The state government handed over the case to the CBI on January 24 prior to the assembly polls. The home department's report to the Centre also said the Crime Branch could not find any evidence against Chandy.

This report emboldened the UDF, which had maintained that the transfer of cases to the CBI was politically-motivated. The CBI Thiruvananthapuram unit had also given an objection report to New Delhi stating the case should not be taken up owing to lack of evidence as well as concerns over the authenticity of the complaint. However, the report was overlooked by the top bosses clearing way for registration of the cases.

Reacting to the news, Chandy said he is not afraid of the CBI probe and will deal with the matter legally.

"The state police had registered FIR by charging non-bailable sections against us. Still they could do nothing. We will face the matter legally with confidence," he said.

Abdullakutty vouched he was innocent and welcomed the CBI probe. "Political leaders should prove their innocence in such scenarios. I will fully cooperate with the probe," he said.

Jesuit priests stranded in Afghanistan, kin seek help

DIVYA CUTINHO @ Mangaluru

TWO Jesuit priests, Fr Jerome Sequeira from Siddakkate near Mangaluru, and Fr P Robert Rodrigues from Thirthahalli, Shivamogga district, are stranded in strife-ridden Afghanistan.

Though Fr Jerome, in an SOS message on Tuesday, said they are safe at the moment, their families back home are worried for their lives, given the horrific situation in the country, which was taken over by the Taliban.

Fr Jerome Sequeira, working as head in-charge of Jesuit Refugee Services (JRS), an international NGO, in Kabul since January 2021, spoke to his brother Vincent Sequeira over phone on Tuesday morning, and said he is staying in a place near Kabul airport. Vincent told TNIE that he had contacted Jesuits provincial Fr Jerome Cutinha, a native of Kulshekar, who is in touch with MEA officials and the Indian embassy in Afghanistan. "My brother asked us not to worry, and to pray for him. He spoke to me for just one minute and disconnected the call since the situation is chaotic there," he said.

Fr Robert, who hails from Thirthahalli, was working in Bamiyan, the capital of Bamiyan province in Central Afghanistan.

Earlier, in a message, Fr Jerome narrated the horrific scenes emerging from Kabul and other parts of Afghanistan, and how the situation in the country is changing rapidly. "We managed to suspend activities on time and ensured the safety of all our staff. Anyway, safety does not make sense here. It is a chaotic situation," he said.

Fr Jerome says that he managed to reach Kabul airport on Sunday morning but by then, the Taliban had taken over the airport. "I had to drag my luggage through a large crowd and vehicles on the road. Thousands of people are trying to flee. The Taliban were shooting in the air and trying to control the crowd. People were boarding flights without any security check or boarding passes. It was a terrifying experience."

He said that Fr Robert went to Bamiyan airport on Saturday, checked in and waited for the UN flight to land. "It takes only 25 minutes from Bamiyan to Kabul. The situation changed dramatically, and the airport security personnel just abandoned the airport. We made sure that Fr Robert is fine and today he is much better and relaxed. We are finding ways to evacuate him from Bamiyan to Kabul with the help of UN agencies," he said.

Fr Sequeira said that though the Taliban are not harming civilians at the moment, things may change for the worse once they fully capture all the systems.

Gelatin stick blast not accidental? Cops file FIR

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Bengaluru

A day after a massive explosion of gelatin sticks inside a car, Sathanuru police on Tuesday registered an FIR against Mahesh P, who was killed in the blast. The police said that the blast may not be accidental and Mahesh may have committed suicide. The FSL team is yet to ascertain the exact cause.

A senior police officer said that early investigations revealed that Mahesh, a resident of Kanakapura, was in a financial crisis for the last few months. "We suspect that he might have ended his life by setting fire to the gelatin sticks inside the car. Some workers at the mining site saw him sitting inside the car for over two hours. He also spoke to some of his friends over the phone before he was killed. We are verifying his phone call records. We also questioned some people who were supplying gelatin sticks to his mining site to find out if safety measures were taken during the transport of explosive material," he said.

Mahesh's body was handed over to his family after the postmortem. His brother recorded the statement before the police.

On Monday afternoon, panic gripped Marale Gavi Mutt village near Kanakapura after the big explosion tore Mahesh's body into pieces and ripped the car apart.

NIA arrests 2 women from Kannur over IS propaganda, FIR submitted

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE
@ Kozhikode

THE National Investigation Agency (NIA) has arrested two women from Kannur for allegedly being part of a group that was engaged in the propagation of the Islamic State (IS) ideology.

Shifa Haris and Mizha Siddique were picked up from their houses at Thana in Kannur on Tuesday morning. They were active on social media platforms that propagated IS ideology, according to the NIA.

The involvement of the women came to light after the NIA arrested Muhammad Ameen, alias Abu Yahya, a native of Malappuram, in March 2015. Three persons were also arrested from Jammu and Kashmir in the same month.

The FIR submitted in the court on March 5 said, "A group of radicalised individuals under the leadership of Muhammad Ameen @ Abu Yahya with allegiance to the proscribed terrorist organisation ISIS have identified certain individuals for targeted killing (sic)."

In another crackdown, IS cadre Zufri Jawhar Damudi of Bhatkal in Karnataka, Ammar Abdul Rahman of Mangaluru and Shankar Venkatesh Perumal of Bengaluru were arrested on August 6, 2021. All of them were accused of spreading IS propaganda through various social media platforms such as Telegram, Instagram, Hoop and Facebook.

Damudi is alleged to have established direct contact with IS handlers in Afghanistan and Pakistan and have translated the propaganda materials given by them. Such materials were used in 'Voice of Hind' and 'Swat Al Hind', the IS magazines being circulated in India.

Mushab Anuvar, an associate of Shifa and Mizha, was arrested in March this year. NIA had raided the houses of the women in Kannur at that time and had seized mobile phones and laptops.

The IS propaganda on the social media had stopped after the killing of the Malayali cadre who had migrated to Syria and Afghanistan.

FALSE CONGRESS EQUIVALENCE WITH THE BJP OF 1984

Whenever faced with questions around the drift in the party, Congress leaders are fond of citing two examples. First, how the BJP was once reduced to two seats and now rules the roost. Second, how the INC was in a similar dire situation even when Indira Gandhi was alive. Both examples are meant to suggest that the prospect of bouncing back is real, and only a matter of time.

But the stark differences should be obvious to those with institutional memory. The BJP was a young party, it still is, with fire in its belly—its two seats in 1984 is not comparable to the Congress's 44/52 in 2014/2019. Besides, the BJP has a fount in the RSS, an ideological nursery where work never ceases—and nor does the supply of readymade cadre. The INC has no such supply chain. What it has is a conglomeration of community leaders with individual influence bases. Individual leaders, thus, are key to the Congress structure. The movement of one leader to greener pastures, therefore, leads to a near-permanent destruction of that base. A Sushmita Dev joining the TMC is thus not just an embarrassing blow, it means the loss of a young, bright, firebrand leader from the Cachar region at a time when the INC is already weakened in the Northeast. Mamata Banerjee's Trinamool, trying to make a serious bid for Tripura, can rejoice—in a way, Sushmita is their own Himanta Biswa Sarma.

The Congress's inability to retain ambitious young talent, whether a Jyotiraditya, a Himanta or a Sushmita, bodes ill for its future. In 1977, Indira was still a mass leader with her charisma intact—today's Gandhis do not bring that stature to the Congress. Moreover, it has neither Mamata's combat-readiness nor the BJP's deep resources and planning. The two-year-long reign of ad-hocism in its very top leadership structure—itself an unbelievable aberration—can only trickle down as a general sense of defeatism.

A TEAM IN KOHLI'S IMAGE

As the shadows lengthened and the sun set at the House of Cricket on Monday, Virat Kohli's men had just finished scripting another improbable chapter in the book titled 'Unbelievable Test Results'. They began the fifth day 154 runs in front with only Rishabh Pant and the tail standing between the hosts and a smallish final day chase. However, this team doesn't bail out whatever the situation in Tests. Be it 10/2 or 200/2, they play the sport only one way. And that is to play the way their captain would want them to play. Relentless, aggressive, in your face, but most importantly, never ever giving up. The way Mohammed Shami and Jasprit Bumrah stood up on the final day is testimony to this. Kohli has not been in the best of form but that aggression is still vivid on the field. If the New Zealand team, marshalled by Kane Williamson, is a team built in his ice-cool image, the Indian team is very much the house the captain has built. It's hard, uncompromising and going mano a mano.

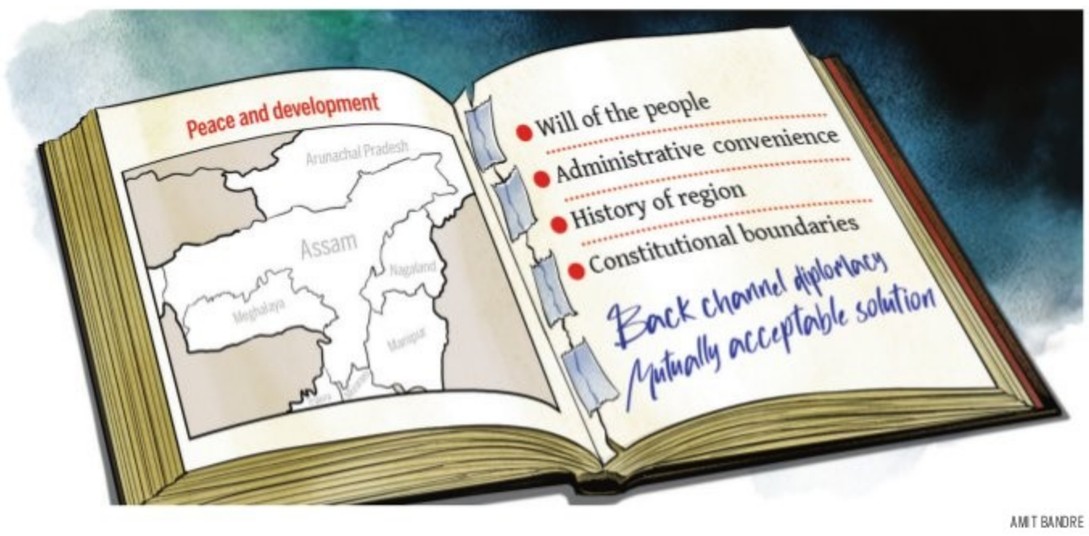
It's why some Indians too don't like his 'uncomfortable' aggression. Indian cricketers of the past have opted to stay quiet rather than place metaphorical tanks in front of opposition doors. But Kohli, and his team, aren't here to win brownie points. Winning Tests matches, especially in an era when victory away from home is one of the hardest things in the sport, is also about winning ego clashes, verbal skirmishes and giving hell to the opposition. One can argue they exposed the soft underbelly of the English team after they targeted James Anderson with some well-directed bumpers on the third evening. That Bumrah was the one leading the charge, a pacer who smiles even when he wants to scowl, is indicative of the type of players Kohli and the think tank have built. The hosts were incensed and intent on retribution and lost their minds. Kohli, the cameras showed, wanted his bowlers and fielders to give hell to the opposition in the 60 overs they had and that's what he got. Sure, this team may have not got the ICC trophies it craves but, at this moment in time, it has that unmistakable buzz about it. That buzz could yet yield something special; if India wins two of the next three Tests in England, it will win a series in England for the first time since 2007.

It is not just whether a piece of land belongs to one state or the other. At the heart of the matter is how the problem can be resolved without creating further bad blood

NORTHEAST DISPUTE: CBMs ON THE BORDER

SANJOY HAZARIKA

Author and commentator on issues of the Northeast and Director, CHRI



AMIT BANDRE

As the Taliban sweeps across the rugged mountainscape of Afghanistan in a victorious surge—its second in 20 years—and poses new, urgent security and diplomatic challenges for India and South Asia, the problems of the Northeastern states appear to have moved from the front pages and television talk shows of the metro media to the background.

The reason we speak of Afghanistan, a land with so many issues so far from the Northeast, is simple: Nothing is distant, even at a time of the pandemic. News, including fake news and disinformation, travels fast, triggering many concerns about national, regional and international security. In fact, Myanmar, the immediate large neighbour of the Northeast, itself has gone through a wrenching military coup followed by a devastating crackdown against both peaceful pro-democracy movements and violent anti-junta outbursts in which nearly 1,000 persons have died. The standoff has lasted six months and although things appear to be momentarily calm, much is happening under the surface—for example, the Norwegian telecom giant Telenor has announced its withdrawal from the country.

This is why it is critical that the Eastern part of the country remains stable and secure. All of us can remember the tumultuous decades between the 1980s and 2000s when violence, insurgency, bandhs, ethnic conflict, fear, anger at rights violations, suspicion and tragedy were bywords. Or in today's parlance, keywords to help scour the net to learn about that time.

The Indian state was then in conflict, with uprisings making a range of demands from outright independence to more autonomy or new states. Today, looking back, there are few in their 20s, whether in those states or in other parts of India, who can imagine the times when the days would begin early and end early—government and private offices and markets would close in the afternoon, cinemas were shut and travel in some states would be permitted in daylight hours in convoys with armed police or paramilitary escorts.

Those days have gone, we would like to believe, for good. Peace on the ground has returned in states that were crippled by insurgencies. This is as much due to the pressure that the state was able to exert over decades as it is to public disillusionment and fatigue and growing aspirations among people, especially the young, for a better life unfettered by fear or stress. In addition, political reconciliations and agreements have been developed that have the support of national and state leaders.

But we must remain aware that there are those who will wish to stir the pot and create new tensions. Such efforts need to be tackled firmly.

Unresolved issues such as borders are rising anew to the fore after remaining under the surface for decades. They were earlier pushed under the carpet either as not significant or not urgent enough. It is in this light that fractious boundary disputes and territorial problems have to be seen.

There is a seamless connection between internal situations and external conditions that needs to be understood better. Unsettled conditions are quickly exploited by outside elements or groups within who are opposed to a democratic and peaceful framework. The latter depends as much on internal concord between states and communities as anything else.

It is not just whether a piece of land belongs to one state or the other, or whether a line drawn by the colonial power either 150 years ago or 80 years ago should be the one to follow. At the heart of the matter is how the problem can be resolved without creating further bad blood. It should not be a surprise that Assam's border disputes are with the four states that were carved out of it, not with the neighbouring states that had existed since historical times and had defined borders.

Assam Chief Minister Himanta Biswa Sarma has recently outlined four benchmarks that would form the basis for such a resolution. In my view, these and two others that I suggest later provide the fundamentals of confidence-building measures that can be the bedrock of a sustainable agreement.

According to Sarma, the first is the will of the people living at the border, although how that is to be ascertained is not clear. It will need a lot of work at the field level by non-partisan groups from either side as well as confidence-building, patience and persuasion. This first point is connected to another one, that of the need for states to have administrative convenience in terms of access. He gave the example of people from one state having to travel several kilometres across Assam to get to their nearest administrative office. The third is of history and the fourth is of constitutional boundaries. The challenge with the last lies especially where sides insist on historical boundaries.

There are few in their 20s who can imagine the times when the days would begin early and end early—offices and markets would close in the afternoon, cinemas were shut and travel in some states would be permitted in daylight hours in convoys with armed police or paramilitary escorts

The situation tends to get a bit murky on history, for there are contested histories. This is where historians, local communities and their oral histories, and civil society would need to come in as active and concerned citizens. Independent experts could also provide inputs. It has to be done stage by stage, level by level, without rushing the process. Later, government officials including revenue officers from both sides could play a role.

I would add two points here: one, that all sides would need to acknowledge that till such time there is a mutually acceptable solution—and one that is supported by the Centre—the status quo ante should be maintained. The neutral peacekeeping force needs to be active and vigilant: The latest bout caught the CRPF on the Mizoram-Assam border apparently unawares.

In addition to official channels, back channels also need to be activated. Back track diplomacy is key and is an established process that has worked between countries and other states and stakeholders. Israel and Palestine is one example as is India and Bangladesh and even India and Pakistan. I have identified groups such as scholars and researchers, local civil society but also elders from either side who can help provide elements for a sustainable peace. This can be the basis for political initiatives leading to resolution.

A few years ago, the North East Students Organization (NESO), which has student representatives and organisations from all states of the region, was requested to partake in dialogue with Mizoram and Assam to reduce tensions. This was part of a larger process that worked. Confidence-building comes from connecting existing resources within the region and enabling better communication.

There is, of course, the legal path: The disputes between Nagaland and Assam as well as Assam and Arunachal Pradesh are before the Supreme Court. While Assam and Nagaland have agreed to stick to the legal resolution, there are efforts to take the conversation with Arunachal out of the courts.

Peace and development go hand in hand. One does not precede the other. But one cannot grow without the other. Decades ago, the people of the region turned their back on militancy, terrorism and conflict. They cannot afford fresh confrontations that will push the clock back to an unwanted time.

RHYMES & VERSES FROM CLASSICS ON MONSOON RAINS

SRINIVAS SISTLA

Associate Professor, Department of Fine Arts, Andhra University, Visakhapatnam

I do not remember at what age and how I had learned a children's rhyme in Telugu, Vaanallukuravaali Vaana-demuda, but the stanza still reverberates in my thoughts, especially during the summer season when most of India, except for a few hill stations, gets unbearably hot. Though the rhyme has many local variations, the one I know in translation goes as follows. "Rains have to be showered, O rain-god! Paddy crops have to be ripened, O rain-god! Dark clouds have to lend the cool rains, O rain-god! Mother-frog has delivered frog-lets, and our earthen pots have filled with water, see for yourself, O rain-god! Get drenched in the rain, again and again, O rain-god! The large bamboo baskets at our home have to be filled with twelve varieties of grains, O rain-god!" A few versions have additional stanzas such as, "Workers who migrated to cities have to return to find work in their villages, O rain-god!" Evidently, the rhyme is being improvised constantly by adding new stanzas, which often reflect contemporary situations and conditions of agrarian workers, and other working-class people.

All such children's rhymes in many Indian languages are now disappearing, though their message is very much apt to the soil and conditions in which Indians by and large depend on even today. Years later, when I read/heard for the first time an English children's rhyme, "Rain, rain, go away, come again another day", which apparently is very popular across India, I wondered as to how relevant this nursery couplet is to the weather conditions that prevail in many parts of the country, perhaps with the exception of Cherrapunji. A couplet from another English rhyme, which mentions the patron saint of weather, Swithin (c. 800-863), says, "St. Swithin's Day, thou dost rain, for forty days it will remain." I suppose that so many days of rain would be welcomed in our country, especially by those who are involved in agrarian activities.

In Rig Veda, Rutu is the term frequently mentioned to denote a season, which is counted as three or more; and at times, even six seasons. The Vedic divinity, Varuna, is being revered even now as the God of water, including ocean, rivers, rains and the like. When it rains for the first time during the monsoon of a year, tillers of agricultural fields still say, "Varuna-demudu-karunichaadu" (God Varuna has shown empathy).

Kalidasa's Rutu-samhara (the Pageant of the Seasons), which happens to be the first Sanskrit text printed in Calcutta in 1784, contains verses on all six seasons viz. grishma (summer), varsha (monsoon), sarat (autumn), hemanta (cool), sisira (winter) and vasanta (spring). The poet wrote 28 verses on the monsoon in which the concluding stanza appears almost like phala-sruti (fruits of listening), and the same goes as follows: "May this period of the rain-giving clouds, Charming with its many attractions, The dream of delight of romantic maids, Unselfish friend of trees and vines, And the breath of life of animate beings, Grant you your heart's inmost desires!" The poem of Kalidasa has been translated into English by many, including R S Pandit, who dedicated the translation to Rabindranath Tagore. The first printed edition of the book, released in 1947, contains a painting done by Nandalal Bose as its frontispiece. The painting, to the best of my knowledge, is not well-known as it has not been reproduced elsewhere in any book on the works of Nandalal Bose.

Paddy crop at the erstwhile Vijayanagara capital of Hampi, near Hospet, Karnataka

Mas'ud Sa'd Salman (c. 1046-1121), the first known poet who wrote in Indo-Persian language under the patronage of kings of the Ghaznavid dynasty of Lahore, had compared the Indian monsoon with spring season and said, "Monsoon, the spring of Hindustan, is the saviour from the torment of summer; you brought tidings of the month of Tir, and once again we've escaped the heat." Reflecting upon the fact that rains in India often cause flash floods leading to havoc, Salman said, "I spent such a night in the monsoon rain; water was up to my neck, and mud up to my throat." Suggesting that anything in excess is harmful, Sant Kabir (15th century) had said, "Excessive amount of anything is dangerous, either talking more or keeping absolutely quiet; like too much sun and rain are not good." Later, Mirza Ghalib (1797-1869) wrote a stanza, "How does one pass the dark monsoon night? Alas, my eyes have become accustomed to counting the stars", which suggests not only lack of rains, but also the loneliness of a man without his beloved during the monsoon.

Rice and rice-based preparations are the staple food of a majority of people in India, especially in the south; and, paddy cultivation requires abundance of rains, and water needs to be stored in the field from the time of sowing seeds to the ripening of the crop. This reminds me of a verse written by Sri Krishna Deva Raya of the Vijayanagara empire in his poem in Telugu, Amuktamalyada (c. 1517), that goes as follows. "As paddy crop has ripened, farmers have drained water out of the fields; and hence, many water pools with lotuses have appeared around the fields; when mild breeze is wafting over the fields, the tall and ripen paddy shoots, moving gently, appeared to have raised their hands to plead with the lotuses for some water."

Don't abandon Afghans

This newspaper said it right when it captioned the situation in Afghanistan, Fear and desperation (Aug 17). The UN calling on world leaders not to abandon Afghans couldn't have been more appropriate. The entire world must stand behind war-ravaged Afghanistan and limit the potential damage an extremist outfit like the Taliban can inflict on that nation.

Ghani's action shameful

The happenings in Afghanistan are heartbreaking. It was shameful that the elected President of Afghanistan fled Kabul, leaving behind the people who gave him power.

No fight despite an army

In the backdrop of the Taliban advancing from province to province in Afghanistan and ultimately capturing Kabul, President Ashraf Ghani fled the country without offering even a semblance of a fight despite having an army at his command. In contrast, reports have said that a Hindu priest in a Kabul temple refused to flee the country, saying if he were to die at the hands of the insurgents, he would consider it a service to the temple. As Shakespeare said, "Cowards die many times before their deaths; the valiant taste of death but once."

Underground drilling has dislocated residents many times in the past due to heavy vibration (Metro tunneling work ends up flooding road, family evacuated, Aug 14). Less precaution seems to be taken as it is mostly poor people in old structures. The BMRCL managing director's assurance to this newspaper about checking the area raises hope of safety henceforth.

Ambassador and others on board, flights from Kabul arrive in India

EAM Jaishankar has word with US Secretary of State to ensure safe passage back home

ITBP personnel on arrival from Kabul at the Indian Air Force base at Hindon, Ghaziabad, on Tuesday | PARVEEN NEGI

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

A day after the Taliban seized power in Afghanistan, India on Tuesday brought back 120 nationals, including Ambassador to Afghanistan Rudrendra Tandon and around 100 ITBP personnel from Kabul in a special Indian Air Force plane.

The plane with the Indian officials landed in Gujarat's Jamnagar at around 11 am, while another flight reached Hindon air base in Ghaziabad.

"In view of the circumstances, it has been decided that our Ambassador in Kabul and his Indian staff will move to India immediately," Ministry of External Affairs spokesperson Arindam Bagchi said.

Kabul airport was reopened for evacuation operations on Tuesday by US agencies. The process was started with National Security Advisor Ajit Doval speaking to his US counterpart Jake Sullivan and External Affairs Minister S Jaishankar speaking to US Secretary of State Antony Blinken. The US agencies are now controlling the Kabul airport. According to sources, the Jaishankar-Blinken conversation revolved around US assistance to Indians for evacuation. It was necessitated after Turkey refused to provide security to the Kabul airport.

In a related development, former first vice-president of Afghanistan Amrullah Saleh, who is reportedly putting up an anti-Taliban front in the Panjshir area, declared himself the caretaker president of the country. "As per d constitution of Afg, in absence, escape, resignation or death of the President the FVP becomes the caretaker President. I am inside my country & am the legitimate caretaker President. Am reaching out to all leaders to secure their support," he tweeted.

Taliban asks India to finish infra projects

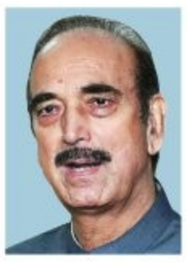
EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

TALIBAN spokesperson Suhail Shaheen has said they will not allow Afghanistan's soil to be used against any other country and called on India to complete the infrastructure projects if New Delhi wished.

"We will not allow any country or any group to use the soil of Afghanistan against anyone. This is clear. India has made projects, many reconstruction and infrastructure projects, and if they want, they can complete the incomplete projects because they are for the people," Shaheen told a Pakistani news channel in Urdu. His remarks are the first after the Taliban seized power in Kabul on Monday.

New Delhi has hinted that it has opened channels of communication with the Taliban but is officially yet to recognise the group. India had recently withdrew all professionals working on development projects in 34 provinces of Afghanistan. India has a total investment of about $3 billion in the war-torn country and many important projects like the Shatoot Dam, Salma Dam, Afghanistan's Parliament and many strategic roads have been built with Indian assistance.

However, last week, the external affairs ministry clarified India has no role once the projects are completed and it would be up to the Afghan people to protect them. Meanwhile, the Taliban spokesperson said the group's policy does not allow if anyone wants to use Afghan soil for their objectives or for their military objectives or for their rivalries.



No smooth sailing for Azad?

According to a section of Congress leaders, sending senior leader Ghulam Nabi Azad to Rajya Sabha looks difficult, considering that veteran leader Mallikarjun Kharge has already been brought to Rajya Sabha and nominated as Leader of Opposition. Azad's role in demanding organisational elections may also go against him, if sources are to be believed.

Old vs young as Cong weighs RS MP options

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

WITH the Election Commission announcing election to one of the three vacant Rajya Sabha seats in Tamil Nadu, Congress is likely to again witness an old-versus-young tussle. The party has to choose between veteran leader Ghulam Nabi Azad, a member of G23 letter writers, and Praveen Chakravarty, chief of the party's data analytics cell and former party chief Rahul Gandhi's close aide.

Discussions have started in Congress to nominate a candidate for the lone seat it is likely to get for being alliance partner in the state. There are three Rajya Sabha seats vacant in Tamil Nadu on the state's demand, elections will be held separately.

Azad, who was leader of Opposition in Rajya Sabha and retired in February, has support of the DMK as joint candidate for the upper House, but some leaders close to the Gandhis have expressed reservations over him.

He is among the leaders who wrote to Congress chief Sonia Gandhi in August, 2020, over leadership vacuum and elections in the party. The group came under attack from close aides of the Gandhis.

Sources said that Chakravarty, who was the brain behind the party's 2019 campaign for NYAY (minimum income guarantee) scheme, is emerging as the choice of the top leadership though a final decision is yet to be taken.

"Despite these leaders' rebellion against top leadership, the Congress chief has heard them and accommodated them in a few committees. But sending Azad to Rajya Sabha looks difficult, especially when veteran leader Mallikarjun Kharge was brought to Rajya Sabha and nominated as Leader of Opposition," said a senior leader.

Unlike Kapil Sibal and a few other prominent and senior Congress leaders, Azad has not been vocal about organisational changes in the last few months and has been focussing on issues in Jammu and Kashmir, the state he comes from.

Afghans to receive emergency visa

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Ministry of Home Affairs on Tuesday introduced a new category of electronic visa — e-Emergency X-Misc Visa — to fast-track applications of Afghan nationals into India.

Afghanistan was not part of the list of countries whose nationals could apply for visa under this category. The government clarified that all Afghans, irrespective of religion, can apply for these visas. Sources said that initially, six months will be given and applications will be processed in New Delhi.

The clarification comes a day after the Union Ministry of External Affairs said the government will facilitate repatriation of Hindu and Sikh communities as well as locals who had stood by India. A detailed security review of applicants will be done before granting visas, officials said.

The announcement came two days after the Taliban captured power in Afghanistan.

"The MHA reviews visa provisions in view of the current situation in Afghanistan. A new category of electronic visa called 'e-Emergency X-Misc Visa' will be introduced to fast-track applications for entry into India," a ministry spokesperson said.

The decision to launch e-visa for Afghans has been taken in view of the situation in Kabul, where the Indian embassy has been shut down. Afghanistan becomes the 172nd country whose nationals are allowed by India to not be physically present in the embassy for visa applications.

Thousands of Afghans rushed to Kabul's main airport on Monday, some so desperate to escape the Taliban that they held onto a military jet as it took off and plunged to death. At least seven people died in the chaos. The crowds came after the Taliban enforced their rule over the capital of five million people after a lightning advance that took just over a week to dethrone the government.

Sushmita switch won't affect Oppn unity: TMC

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

TRINAMOOL Congress on Tuesday said Sushmita Dev joining the party will not impact Opposition unity and asserted that they do not believe in poaching. TMC lawmaker Derek O'Brien said West Bengal Chief Minister Mamata Banerjee will join the Opposition meeting called by Sonia Gandhi along with other leaders on August 20.

"AITC does not believe in poaching. If there are talented people who share a similar vision and they reach out to us, we welcome them," said the Rajya Sabha MP.

On the impact of Dev's joining TMC on Opposition unity, Brien said, "Today is August 17th and on August 20th, Soniaji has called a meeting. Let me confirm Mamata Banerjee will join the meeting with leaders from other parties. In Parliament, you have seen Opposition working together and everyone among them has a different relationship. Our goal is the same," he added.

On the future strategy for Assam, he said, "Plan for Assam, Tripura or rest of the states will be revealed in September."

Dev said her relation with Congress was for 30 years, but she cannot deny her relationship with the West Bengal CM. "Owing to the fact that my father was a former Union minister, we (my family and I) know her for 40 years. I have written to Sonia Gandhiji and sought her blessings. Congress has given me ample opportunities and there is not a single moment that I regret. I have no grievances against Soniaji and Rahulji," she said.

On joining TMC, Dev said, "I have joined TMC without any conditions. It is because when a new relationship is built, it can be fostered only on trust and I have complete faith in Mamata Didi. She has epitomised good governance. In addition, her courage against adversity is commendable. A woman leader who can sit on hunger strike for 26 days in support of protesting farmers, it is needless to describe her courage in words."

China raises firepower & mobility near Pangong Tso

MAYANK SINGH @ New Delhi

CHINA has boosted its capability to mobilise troops and surveillance in the Pangong Tso lake area in north bank, which was the starting point of the protracted stand-off in Eastern Ladakh in May last year.

"China has commissioned high speed patrolling boats in its West Sea Fleet which includes the 928C and 928D high speed patrol boats," said sources. The 928C boats have a maximum speed 60km/hr with carrying cap of 60 persons. The 928D has better armour and firepower cap, added sources.

The Chinese have deployed 928B type boats till now and have been using them to mobilise troops. The Water Squadron of Xinjian Military Division deployed at Pangong Tso opposite Eastern Ladakh is informally being referred to as West Sea Fleet under Western Theatre Command of China, which is entrusted with the responsibility of the entire 3,488 km Line of Actual Control. The Squadron has 200 persons and 20-plus boats, said the sources.

India has also begun deploying modern boats with steel hulls, which will not get damaged if rammed by the Chinese boats. India has ordered 12 boats for surveillance and 17 to mobilise troops using the lake to save time of reaction in case of troop requirement. The northern bank of Pangong Tso is divided into eight hilltops named as Fingers One to Eight, with spurs of the ranges descending towards the lake.

Pangong Tso lake is a 134 kilometrs long brackish water lake at the height of around 14,000 feet which has been in focus due to the stand-off since May, 2020. Although the troops of India and China disengaged from the north and south banks of Pangong Tso in February, overall troop levels has not come down, with around 50-60,000 troops on each side.

Attack on statue shows Pak situation: MEA

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

INDIA on Tuesday lashed out at Pakistan over vandalization of the Maharaja Ranjit Singh statue in Lahore, saying the incident shows the growing intolerance and lack of respect for minorities in Pakistan.

"This is the third such incident wherein the statue has been vandalised, since it was unveiled in 2019. Such attacks on the cultural heritage of minority communities in Pakistan highlight the growing intolerance and lack of respect for minority communities in Pakistani society," Ministry of External Affairs Spokesperson Arindam Bagchi said.

The statue was vandalised by members of Tehreek-e-Labbaik Pakistan, who feel it is against their religion to erect a statue of a Sikh ruler in a Muslim country. The police have detained one man in connection with the case.

The nine-foot, bronze statue was unveiled in June, 2019, at the Lahore Fort to mark the 180th death anniversary of the Maharaja. Singh ruled Punjab for close to 40 years.

The statue was first attacked two months after its unveiling by the same group after which two members of the group were arrested. Bagchi said incidents of violence against minority communities, including attacks on their places of worship, are increasing at an alarming rate.

Pegasus controversy: SC issues notice to Centre

KANU SARDA @ New Delhi

THE Supreme Court on Tuesday issued a pre-admission notice to the Central government on petitions seeking a court-monitored probe into the Pegasus snooping row.

A three-judge bench headed by CJI NV Ramana issued a notice after Solicitor General Tushar Mehta expressed inability to file a detailed affidavit revealing whether the government used the Peagsus software or not. So far, the bench had been hearing the matter without issuing any notice.

Mehta argued against making this information public, saying it was not in public interest, as national security aspects are involved and he assured that the government is ready to make a disclosure before a committee of technical experts, which it proposes to set up. This committee will submit its report to the court.

The judges told Mehta they do not want to compel him to divulge information that could potentially harm national security. "We would never ask you to make any such disclosure, irrespective of whether such a prayer is made or not. The question is that are individuals, civilians, person of eminence who suspect and allege snooping or hacking. In case of civilians also, rules permit (interception), but only subject to the permission of the competent authority," said Justice Surya Kant.

"We will issue a simple notice and let the competent authority under rules take a decision to what extent information is to be disclosed and we will see what is to be done," the judge said. The bench will hear the matter after 10 days.

CJI Ramana said the judges will deliberate on how to proceed. "We will consider what can be done. If a committee of experts needs to be made, or some other committee, we will do so," the court told Mehta, who requested to let the government form the panel. "Even though rules permit an interception, that can be done only by the permission of the competent authority. What is the problem if that authority filed an affidavit before us?" the bench said.

Solicitor General raises security concern

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta told the bench that if things are divulged at public forum, terrorist organisations will take advantage of a public disclosure on which software is used for interceptions or surveillance to change their communication settings.

UP zilla panchayat wants to rename Aligarh as Harigarh

Demands also being raised to change names of Firozabad, Mainpuri

NAMITA BAJPAI @ Lucknow

THE drive to rename places seems to have no end in Uttar Pradesh. Now, the newly-elected zila panchayats are proposing to change the names of their respective districts, including Aligarh, Mainpuri and Firozabad.

The Aligarh Zila Panchayat sought to rename Aligarh as Harigarh at a panchayat meeting held on Monday and passed a resolution to this effect.

Members of the zila panchayat claimed that it was a long pending demand of the people of Aligarh. The proposal was passed in the first meeting of the panchayat without any opposition. Fifty, out of a total of 72 members, were in attendance."It was a long pending demand to rename Aligarh as Harigarh. The zila panchayat approved the proposal unopposed. It would now be forwarded to the state government for approval," stated Vijay Singh, zila panchayat chairman for Aligarh.

A proposal was also passed to name the airport in Aligarh after BJP leader and former UP chief minister Kalyan Singh, who hails from the city, zila panchayat chairman said.

Aligarh division comprises Hathras, Etah and Kasganj districts. Similarly, the zila panchayat of Mainpuri passed the resolution seeking to rename Mainpuri as Mayan Nagar. According to zila panchayat members, Mayan Nagar is proposed to be named after sage Mayan who founded the present day Mainpuri.

"One of the zila panchayat members had moved the proposal for renaming Mainpuri i as Mayan Nagar and the proposal was passed with 23 members supporting the motion and two opposing it," said Archana Bhadoria, zila panchayat chairperson of Mainpuri.

It was the first meeting of Mainpuri zila panchayat after its constitution. Located near the Isan River, Mainpuri is believed to be a bastion of Samajwadi Party (SP) patriarch Mulayam Singh Yadav, who has represented it five times in the Lok Sabha.

Earlier this month, the Firozabad district panchayat had also passed a resolution demanding that Firozabad be renamed as Chandra Nagar. Locals believed that King Chandrasen lived in Firozabad. As such, it was known as Chandravar Nagar till about 1560 AD. According to local residents, the city of bangles and glass was renamed Firozabad when Firoz Shah, an emissary of Emperor Akbar, visited the area.

Members of the Firozabad Zila Panchayat said the demand to rename Firozabad as Chandra Nagar has been raised time and again.

As Maha eases curbs, health task force warns of third wave

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

A health task force constituted by the Maharashtra government on Tuesday warned that the easing of Covid restrictions may trigger a third wave of the pandemic, if people fail to follow Covid-appropriate behaviour.

From Tuesday, malls, hotels, and other commercial establishments are allowed to operate till 10.00 pm across the state. The education department has given a green light to schools to begin offline classes for secondary and higher secondary divisions in both urban and rural areas.

The task force said the easing of restrictions was essential to boost the economy, but it can lead to a surge in Covid-19 cases and help trigger a third wave of the pandemic.

Dr Sanjay Oak, chief of the task force, said if the demand for oxygen goes beyond 700 metric tonnes per day and if 30,000 patients are either on oxygen support or ventilators, then the government will have to re-impose the curbs.

"We have to also closely monitor the growth and spread of the delta plus variant. In the second wave, the delta virus was there and that spread very speedily across the state and other parts of India," Dr Oak said. In Maharashtra, a total of 76 cases of delta plus variant cases have been reported. There have also been five deaths linked to the variant.

Dr Oak said the vaccines were manufactured before the advent of the delta plus variant and therefore it is not clear how much effectiveness the vaccines would have. "The vaccine was manufactured and produced before the rise of delta plus variant. Therefore, it is yet to check how much the vaccine is effective on delta plus variant," he said.

Despite green light, flood keeps most schools shut across Bihar

RAJESH KUMAR THAKUR @ Patna

THOUGH the Bihar government has allowed private and public schools to begin offline classes, thousands of schools in localities hit hard by the ongoing flood situation have not been able to open.

According to officials, 26 districts of the state, out of a total of 38, are facing a flood situation. About 32 lakh people have been severely affected.

In districts like Bhojpur, Khagria, Vaishali, Buxar, Nalanda, Bhagalpur and Saran, thousands of children continue to be out of school and suffer the loss of learning opportunities as their school buildings are still inundated by floodwater.

The offline classes started on Monday for students of classes 1 to 8 following the Covid protocols in more than a thousand schools, which are in areas not affected by the flood. These schools have recorded a 50 per cent student attendance.

Surendra Kumar, 52, a farmer from Khagaria, said his three children studying in classes 5, 6, and 7 have not been able to go to school because of the flood.

"They have started forgetting whatever they had learnt earlier, because the school is still closed due to flood now. The flood is now wreaking havoc on the future of children after Covid," he complained.

SHOCKING NEGLIGENCE

Baby left in warmer charred to death in UP

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ Lucknow

A newborn baby was burnt alive at a hospital in Uttar Pradesh's Kaushambi district after being kept in the infant warmer by the hospital staff.

The incident happened at the Sick New Born Care Unit (SNCU) of the Kaushambi district hospital on Sunday.

The infant's family has accused the hospital staff of negligence.

Sources close to the family said, the staff of the SNCU ward did not pay attention to the child after keeping it on the warmer. The agitated family members created a ruckus in the hospital. The police were called in to pacify the family. Inspector of Manjhanpur police station Manish Pandey said Junaid, the father of the infant, has filed a complaint against the hospital staff and the legal proceedings were initiated.

As per the sources, Junaid Ahmad, a native of Harishchandrapur in Fatehpur district, had got his wife Mahelika admitted to the district hospital of Kushambi on Friday evening.

Mahelika gave birth to a baby boy on Saturday evening at 6.15 pm. After examining the baby, the doctors shifted him to SNCU ward, saying that the baby's health was in need of improvement.

The whole night, the family was not allowed to see the baby. On Sunday morning, as the baby's maternal grandmother Shabana went to see him, she saw he was kept on a warmer and had turned blue and smoke was emanating from his body. When taken off the heating pad, the skin of his chest, abdomen and back was badly burned, sources said.

By the time the staff called in the doctors, including Chief Medical Superintendent Dr Deepak Seth, the child had died, said the sources.

As per Junaid's elder brother Javed, when he tried to visit the child early on Sunday morning, he saw the staff was busy on mobile phones and that no one was listening to the family. When the family approached doctors over the incident, they apologised and went away and were not seen again, said Junaid, the father of the child.

Sources said the baby was not taking milk, so was shifted to SNCU. Hospital authorities said a probe would be conducted and the strictest action would be taken against the staff if they are found guilty of negligence.

FAYAZ WANI @ Srinagar

A BJP worker was shot dead by terrorists outside his residence in J&K's Kulgam district on Tuesday—the second targeted killing of a BJP worker in the last eight days in the Valley.

Police said terrorists fired at Javaid Ahmad Dar from a point-blank range in Brazloo village in the afternoon.

Immediately after the attack, a joint team of police, CRPF, and the Army reached the area and launched a search operation to track down the culprits. However, an hour-long search operation did not yield any positive results.

On August 9, terrorists shot dead a BJP leader and Sarpanch Ghulam Rasool Dar and his wife Jawhara Begum at Lalchowk area of south Kashmir's Anantnag district. Police had blamed Lashkar-e-Toiba for the killing.

The BJP has been demanding adequate security and cluster accommodation for its workers in the Valley.

All political parties condemned Tuesday's killing.

ED issues fresh summons to Deshmukh

SUDHIR SURYAWANSHI @ Mumbai

ENFORCEMENT Directorate (ED) on Tuesday issued the fifth summons to Anil Deshmukh asking to appear at the ED office in Mumbai on Wednesday in connection with allegations that he asked police officials to extort ₹100 crore from bars.

Former Maharashtra Home minister Anil Deshmukh had approached the Supreme Court seeking pre-arrest bail. However, the apex court refused to grant him bail.

According to ED officials, Anil Deshmukh has transferred a huge amount of money to shell companies. The money was later transferred to the accounts of his family members. "We have followed the money trail to Deshmukh and his family. The money earned through IPS transfer and other illegal means are reflecting on the bank accounts and we want to verify the details that were unearthed by us during the probe. Therefore, Deshmukh's presence during the probe is very crucial, but he has been refusing to attend the probe," he said requesting anonymity.

He said that if Deshmukh again refuses to attend the probe on Wednesday, then ED may issue a lookout notice. "Then, he will be arrested," he added.

Anil Deshmukh, personal secretary Sanjeev Palande in his statement to the ED admitted that they used to make money from the transfer of police officers. BJP leader Atul Bhatkalkar said the former Maharashtra home minister is running away from the probe. "This is very shameful that Deshmukh is not cooperating with ED," Bhatkalkar said. On Tuesday, the Maharashtra government in its affidavit to Bombay HC said CBI was demanding an irrelevant document that has nothing to do with Deshmukh case. It stated that the CBI can conduct the probe as per the directions of the court, but not as per its own wish.

EXPRESS NEWS SERVICE @ New Delhi

THE Central government on Tuesday told the Supreme Court that it is not feasible or advisable to have a dedicated national-level security force for the protection of judges and courts.

Solicitor General Tushar Mehta made this submission in a suo motu case related to the killing of an Additional District Judge in Jharkhand. "The security of courts is better left to the States, as it requires a day to day coordination with the local police," said Mehta adding that the State police is better equipped to deal with the surveillance of criminals and intelligence gathering. "It has to be state-specific instead of country-specific," the SG said.

"Policing is a state subject but the central government has an inbuilt model which the states have to follow. A specialized branch of police must be there to look after the protection of judges and courts," Mehta said while talking about the guidelines issued by the Union Home Ministry to the States.

Responding to this, the Chief Justice of India said that, "These are administrative issues for you [Central Government] to make decisions on. We can't guide you to do this or that." The SG said that he will talk to the Union Home Secretary for the implementation of the guidelines. The bench also noticed that several States have not filed their counter-affidavits and added that failing to file it by the next date would attract ₹1 lakh fine and that the Chief Secretaries would be summoned. The matter will be heard after 10 days.

US Army expended $83 billion to build and train Afghan security forces over the past two decades

Taliban captured an array of military equipment when they overran Afghan forces who failed to defend dist centres

TALIBAN BENEFIT FROM BILLIONS SPENT ON AF ARMY

WASHINGTON

BUILT and trained at a two-decade cost of $83 billion, Afghan security forces collapsed so quickly and completely — in some cases without a shot fired — that the ultimate beneficiary of the American investment turned out to be the Taliban. They grabbed not only political power but also US-supplied firepower — guns, ammunition, helicopters and more.

The Taliban captured an array of modern military equipment when they overran Afghan forces who failed to defend district centers. Bigger gains followed, including combat aircraft, when the Taliban rolled up provincial capitals and military bases with stunning speed, topped by capturing the biggest prize, Kabul, over the weekend.

A US defense official confirmed the Taliban's sudden accumulation of US-supplied Afghan equipment is enormous. The official was not authorized to discuss the matter publicly and so spoke on condition of anonymity. The reversal is an embarrassing consequence of misjudging the viability of Afghan government forces — by the US military as well as intelligence agencies — which in some cases chose to surrender their vehicles and weapons rather than fight.

The US failure to produce a sustainable Afghan army and police force, and the reasons for their collapse, will be studied for years by military analysts. The basic dimensions, however, are clear and are not unlike what happened in Iraq. The forces turned out to be hollow, equipped with superior arms but largely missing the crucial ingredient of combat motivation.

"Money can't buy will. You cannot purchase leadership," John Kirby, chief spokesman for Defense Secretary Lloyd Austin, said Monday.

Doug Lute, a retired Army lieutenant general who help direct Afghan war strategy during the George W. Bush and Barack Obama administrations, said that what the Afghans received in tangible resources they lacked in the more important intangibles.

"The principle of war stands — moral factors dominate material factors," he said. "Morale, discipline, leadership, unit cohesion are more decisive than numbers of forces and equipment. As outsiders in Afghanistan, we can provide materiel, but only Afghans can provide the intangible moral factors."

By contrast, Afghanistan's Taliban insurgents, with smaller numbers, less sophisticated weaponry and no air power, proved a superior force. US intelligence agencies largely underestimated the scope of that superiority, and even after President Joe Biden announced in April he was withdrawing all US troops, the intelligence agencies did not foresee a Taliban final offensive that would succeed so spectacularly.

"If we wouldn't have used hope as a course of action, ... we would have realised the rapid drawdown of US forces sent a signal to the Afghan national forces that they were being abandoned," said Chris Miller, acting secretary of defense at the end of President Donald Trump's term. Stephen Biddle, a professor of international and public affairs at Columbia University and a former adviser to US commanders in Afghanistan, said Biden's announcement set the final collapse in motion.

"The problem of the US withdrawal is that it sent a nationwide signal that the jig is up — a sudden, nationwide signal that everyone read the same way," Biddle said. Before April, the Afghan government troops were slowly but steadily losing the war, he said. When they learned that their American partners were going home, an impulse to give up without a fight "spread like wildfire."

The failures, run much deeper. The US tried to develop a credible Afghan defense establishment on the fly, even as it was fighting the Taliban, attempting to widen the political foundations of the government and seeking to establish democracy in a country rife with corruption and cronyism. AP

Talks continue with Karzai, Abdullah

Talks continued on Tuesday between the Taliban and several Afghan government officials, including former President Hamid Karzai and Abdullah Abdullah, who once headed the country's negotiating council. Discussions focused on how a Taliban-dominated government would operate given the changes in Afghanistan over the last 20 years, rather than just dividing up who controlled what ministries, officials with knowledge of the negotiations said. AP

Bush voices 'deep sadness' over Taliban takeover

WASHINGTON

FORMER US president George W. Bush said he has been watching the Taliban's lightning takeover of Kabul "with deep sadness" and has urged Washington to speed up evacuations from Afghanistan. Bush ordered the 2001 invasion to oust the Taliban regime that sheltered Al-Qaeda leader Osama bin Laden following the group's September 11, 2001 attacks on the United States that killed 2,977 people. The 43rd US leader said in a letter released late Monday that he and former first lady Laura Bush "stand ready as Americans to lend our support and assistance," after the Taliban overran Kabul, declaring they were back in power.

Tens of thousands of people have tried to flee the hardline Islamist rule expected under the Taliban, many fearing retribution for siding with the US-backed government that ruled for the past two decades.

"Laura and I have been watching the tragic events unfolding in Afghanistan with deep sadness," Bush said. "Our hearts are heavy for both the Afghan people who have suffered so much and for the Americans and NATO allies who have sacrificed so much." AFP

Trudeau: Canada won't recognise Taliban govt

Ottawa: Canada does not intend to recognise a Taliban government in Afghanistan, Prime Minister Justin Trudeau said on Tuesday, explaining that Ottawa continues to view the group as a terrorist organisation. "Canada has no plans to recognise the Taliban," Trudeau said. "They have taken over and replaced a duly elected democratic government by force. And... they are a recognized terrorist organization under Canadian law," he said.

Taliban co-founder back in Afghanistan, group says all 'pardoned'

KABUL

THE Taliban's co-founder returned to Afghanistan on Tuesday following the group's stunning takeover of the country, as a top spokesman declared a general amnesty and insisted the insurgents would not seek "revenge".

Earlier in the day, the insurgents told government staff to return to work — though residents reacted cautiously and few women took to the streets.

Mullah Abdul Ghani Baradar's arrival from Qatar — where he has spent months leading talks with the United States and then Afghan peace negotiators — crowns a stunning comeback for the Taliban after being ousted 20 years ago. Tens of thousands of people have tried to flee the country to escape the hardline Islamist rule expected under the Taliban, or fearing direct retribution for siding with the US-backed government that ruled for the past two decades.

If the question is based on ideology, and beliefs, there is no difference... but if we calculate it based on experience, maturity, and insight, no doubt there are many differences

Zabihullah Mujahid, Taliban spokesman

But Taliban spokesman Zabihullah Mujahid told reporters the new government would be "positively different" from their 1996-2001 regime, infamous for deaths by stoning and barring women from working in contact with men.

"If the question is based on ideology, and beliefs, there is no difference... but if we calculate it based on experience, maturity, and insight, no doubt there are many differences," Mujahid told reporters.

"All those in the opposite side are pardoned from A to Z," he said. "We will not seek revenge."

Mujahid said a government would soon be formed but offered few details other than to say the Taliban would "connect with all sides".

Baradar, now deputy leader of the Taliban, chose to touch down in Afghanistan's second biggest city Kandahar — the Taliban's spiritual birthplace and capital during their first time in power.

Meanwhile, the European Union's foreign policy chief Josep Borrell said on Tuesday the bloc will have to talk to the Taliban.

"The Taliban have won the war, so we will have to talk with them," he said, while stressing this does not mean moving quickly to officially recognise their rule. AFP

Statue of Maharaja Ranjit Singh vandalised

Lahore: A nine-feet tall cold bronze statue of the first Sikh ruler Maharaja Ranjit Singh was on Tuesday vandalised by an activist of the banned Tehreek-e-Labbaik Pakistan (TLP) at the Lahore Fort in Pakistan's Punjab province, according to media reports. As per the video that has gone viral, the accused could be seen chanting slogans, breaking the arm of the statue and dismantling Singh's bust from the horse and throwing it on ground before being pulled by another man. The TLP activist has been arrested by the Punjab police, reports said. Reacting to the incident, Information Minister Fawad Chaudhary in a tweet said that such "illiterates are really dangerous" for Pakistan's image internationally. PTI

Virus emergency extended

Tokyo: Japanese Prime Minister Yoshihide Suga officially expanded and extended the nation's coronavirus state of emergency on Tuesday, as government advisers recommended legal changes that would allow penalties for violations. The measures, approved by a government task force, add seven prefectures to the six areas already under a state of emergency and extend it to September 12. Ten other prefectures were put under a 'quasi-emergency,' which had previously encompassed six prefectures, bringing about two-thirds of the nation under some form of emergency as Covid infections 'explode' across the nation. AP

Tropical storm drenches Haiti, quake toll up to 1,419

LES CAYES (HAITI)

TROPICAL Storm Grace swept over Haiti with drenching rains just two days after a powerful earthquake battered the impoverished Caribbean nation, adding to the misery of thousands who lost loved ones, suffered injuries or found themselves homeless and forcing overwhelmed hospitals and rescuers to act quickly.

Heavy rain and strong winds overnight whipped at the country's southwestern area, hit hardest by Saturday's quake, and officials warned that rainfall could reach 38cm (15 inches) in some areas before the storm moved on.

Port-au-Prince, the capital, also saw heavy rains. Grace regained tropical storm status after falling to the level of a tropical depression.

The storm arrived on the same day that the country's Civil Protection Agency raised the death toll from the earthquake to 1,419 and the number of injured to 6,000, many of whom have had to wait for medical help lying outside in wilting heat.

Grace's rain and wind raised the threat of mudslides and flash flooding as it slowly passed by southwestern Haiti's Tiburon Peninsula before heading toward Jamaica and southeastern Cuba on Tuesday. Forecasters said it could be a hurricane before hitting Mexico's Yucatan Peninsula.

The quake nearly wrecked some towns in the latest disaster to befall the Western Hemisphere's poorest nation.

Haitians already were struggling with the coronavirus pandemic, gang violence, worsening poverty and the July 7 assassination of President Jovenel Moïse. AP

Portugal battles fires as heatwave persists

Lisbon: Hundreds of Portuguese firefighters on Tuesday struggled to control a blistering blaze that broke out in southern Portugal the day before, forcing the evacuation of around 80 people. Portugal is the latest European nation to face extreme weather and fierce fires, which climate scientists warn will become increasingly common due to man-made global warming. Firefighters initially managed to control the wildfire that broke out in the early hours of Monday near the Spanish border in the tourist region of Algarve, but the blaze picked up again in the afternoon, spreading across around 3,000 hectares.

Gusty winds bring new worries to California fire lines

QUINCY

FIREFIGHTERS battling flames in Northern California forests girded for new bouts of windy weather, and a utility warned thousands of customers it might cut their electricity to prevent new fires from igniting if gusts damage power lines.

Conditions that suppressed the huge Dixie Fire overnight gave way in the afternoon to gusty winds that pushed flames through an area where drought and summer heat have turned vegetation to tinder.

The fire was only a few miles from Susanville, the county seat of Lassen County with a population of nearly 20,000, and ash fell in the area. Portions of Janesville, a small nearby mountain community, were ordered to evacuate. Bulldozers had cut fire lines in the path of the northward-trending blaze but "a lot of our lines are getting tested now," fire spokesman David Janssen said.

A home burns on Jeters Road at Janesville in California | AP/PTI

Smoke over the fire had slowed its activity earlier in the day but gusty winds arrived in the afternoon, pushing the blaze into extreme activity, torching groups of trees and quickly propelling smaller spot fires that sprang up as much as a couple of miles ahead of the fire front, fire officials said. "By the time we get there to fight it, it's not only a quarter-acre, it's already exploded," Janssen said.

The Dixie Fire has scorched more than 2,331 square km in the Sierra Nevada since its start on July 13. AP

Get stay from SC or will halt deal, HC tells Future

May enforce single-judge order on ₹24,713-cr deal with Reliance; next hearing on Sept 17

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Delhi High Court has given the Future Group four weeks' time to get a stay from the Supreme Court or it will implement the single-judge order halting the crucial ₹24,713 crore deal with Reliance Retail to sell its business, which was objected to by Amazon.

Justice Suresh Kumar Kait, hearing Amazon's plea for enforcement of the award by Singapore's Emergency Arbitrator (EA) restraining Future Retail Limited (FRL) from going ahead with the deal, said that in the absence of any stay from the apex court, he has no option but to enforce the order passed by Justice JR Midha on March 18.

Justice Midha had found the emergency arbitrator's order against Future Group to be valid and enforceable. He had asked Future Retail and its promoters to seek recall of regulatory approvals granted for the deal with Reliance Retail in violation of the EA's order. Since Justice Midha has retired, the matter now came up for hearing before Justice Kait.

Listing the matter for further hearing on September 17, the court said: "Either get a stay on March 18 order or comply with the order. This court has no third option."

Advocate Parag Tripathi, representing Future Coupons (FCPL) and other related parties, informed the high court that a special leave petition (SLP) against the March 18 order has already been filed before the Supreme Court. However, the court observed that simply filing SLP will not help you. "You get the order of stay. I have only one option i.e to get the order implemented." Advocate Gopal Subramanium, appearing for Amazon, said Justice Midha's order was effective and had to be complied with.

No third option: HC

Listing the matter for further hearing on September 17, the court said: "Either get a stay on March 18 order or comply with the order. This court has no third option."

Tax refund scheme for 8.5k export items

ANURADHA SHUKLA @ New Delhi

IN order to support the exports further, the government on Tuesday announced new export refund rates under RoDTEP scheme where exporters will be given tax refunds in the range of 0.5-4.3% on 8,555 products.

The announcement of the rates, which are in the range of 0.5-4.3%, comes two years after the scheme was first announced. After that it had missed several deadlines.

"The scheme's objective is to refund, currently un-refunded duties/ taxes/ levies, at the central, state & local level, borne on the exported product, including prior stage cumulative indirect taxes on goods & services used in production of the exported product and such indirect Duties/ taxes/ levies in respect of distribution of exported products", the commerce ministry said.

The scheme is loosely based on the principle that taxes and duties should not be exported, and taxes and levies borne on the exported products should be either exempted or remitted to exporters, the ministry added.

Applicable from january 1, 2021, the rates is aimed at making India's exports more competitive in the global arena, at a time when exports have become the driving factor of economic recovery. A Sakthivel, President, FIEO, said that the much-awaited rates will help in easing the liquidity of the exporters, ensuring predictability and stability thus helping competitiveness of exports in long term.

The scheme will be implemented by customs through a simplified IT system and refund will be issued in the form of a transferable duty credit/ electronic scrip (e-scrip) which will be maintained by the Central Board of Indirect Taxes & Customs (CBIC).

Abhishek Jain, Tax Partner, EY, says, "The notification lists down several ineligible categories such as exports by advance authorisation holders, EOUs, SEZs, units set up under MOOWR scheme; these industry players would be disappointed... The export industry would hope seamless transition into new scheme with equitable benefit."

RBI unveils its first financial inclusion index at 53.9

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

THE Financial Inclusion Index (FI-Index) to capture and improve the extent of financial inclusion in the country is now ready, informed the Reserve Bank of India (RBI) on Tuesday. The first reading of RBI's annual Financial Inclusion (FI) Index for the period ending March 2021 has come in at 53.9, against 43.4 for the period ending March 2017.

The index captures information on various aspects of financial inclusion in a single value ranging between 0 and 100, where 0 represents complete financial exclusion and 100 indicates full financial inclusion.

The index incorporates details of banking, investments, insurance, postal as well as the pension sector in consultation with the government and respective sectoral regulators, the central bank said in a statement on its website.

The FI Index comprises three broad parameters (weights indicated in brackets) — Access (35%), Usage (45%), and Quality (20%), with each of these consisting of various dimensions computed based on a number of indicators.

The Index, which has been constructed without any 'base year' and as such reflects cumulative efforts of all stakeholders over the years towards financial inclusion, is responsive to ease of access, availability and usage of services, and quality of services, comprising all 97 indicators, the RBI added.

A unique feature of the Index is the quality parameter, which captures the quality aspect of financial inclusion as reflected by financial literacy, consumer protection, and inequalities and deficiencies in services. The FI Index will be published annually in July every year.

RBI allows HDFC Bank to issue credit cards; ban on digital products remains

SESA SEN @ New Delhi

THE Reserve Bank of India (RBI) has partially lifted restrictions on HDFC Bank, which were put in place in December 2020, said a person with direct knowledge of the matter. The private lender has been allowed to resume issuing credit cards, but the ban on introducing new digital initiatives will continue, the person added, quoting a letter sent to the bank on August 17.

Perturbed by repeated tech glitches at HDFC Bank, the central bank took an unprecedented action against the lender eight months ago, putting a freeze on it issuing any new credit card, a segment in which it was a market leader, and also barring it from introducing any new digital offerings. However, the bank has been in constant discussion with RBI ever since the ban was imposed and has upgraded its systems as per the indications from the regulator.

The bank also chalked out a plan to revamp its digital banking infrastructure and conducted a third-party audit of its IT infrastructure on the RBI's orders. It seems that the restrictions were considered for lifting upon satisfactory compliance with critical observations as identified by the RBI.

Earlier in an interaction with TNIE, Parag Rao, who is the head of consumer finance, digital banking and information technology had said, within 3-4 months of the ban getting lifted, one should expect a correction in the incremental market share back to the pre-ban levels. In the cards business, where the bank has 1.5 crore customers, the bank has lost its market share by a couple of percentage points because of the ban.

SPICEJET IS HIVING OFF ITS ₹2,556-CR LOGISTICS BUSINESS SPICEXPRESS

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

LOSS-MAKING carrier SpiceJet is hiving off its profitable cargo and logistic business and transferring it on a slump sale basis to its subsidiary SpiceXpress and Logistics ("SpiceXpress"), subject to the approval of shareholders and also such other approvals as may be required.

The airline has also sought shareholders' nod to raise up to ₹2,500 crore via issuance of eligible securities through Qualified Institutions Placement (QIP).

"The logistics business has been valued at ₹2,555.77 crore based on an independent valuation exercise carried out by the company and the purchase consideration for the same shall be discharged by SpiceXpress by issuance of shares of SpiceXpress to SpiceJet, subject to all approvals as may be required. It is expected that SpiceXpress will operate as a separate entity upon transfer of business on or around October 1, 2021," SpiceJet said in a statement.

This was a much expected move by the Gurugram-based carrier as Chairman and Managing Director Ajay Singh recently said that company was making efforts to strengthen the logistics business after the Q1FY22 results were released. The carrier has already approached the government for obtaining a no-objection certificate.

According to the company's quarterly result that was announced recently, SpiceXpress made a net profit of ₹30 crore, with revenue for the segment growing by 285% year-on-year to ₹473 crore for Q1FY22. In contrast, SpiceJet had reported a consolidated net loss of ₹731.12 crore in the April-June quarter against a loss of ₹600.52 crore in the same quarter last year.

This was the sixth straight quarterly loss for SpiceJet. The auditors of SpiceJet again raised concern about the airline's ability to continue as a going concern as mounting losses have led to complete erosion of net worth, with liabilities exceeding assets by ₹6,044.91 crore as of June 30, 2021.

Market experts too welcomed this move but remained cautious on the airline stock in the backdrop of a possible third Covid-19 wave, rising fuel prices, suspension of international flights and other obstacles.

"...We think that SpiceJet's strategy of having a strong presence in the international cargo market out of India is sensible," said HSBC in a report.

Grofers eyes 10-min delivery as Zomato puts in $100 mn

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

AFTER a fresh $100-million fundsraise from food delivery major Zomato at a likely $1billion valuation, e-grocery startup Grofers has amped up its services by promising 10-minute delivery of groceries and other essentials across 10 cities in India.

Grofers CEO Albinder Dindsa said in a blogpost on Tuesday that the average delivery times arestill hovering around the 15-minute mark, however the target is below 10 minutes for every customer in India. "As we sign up more partners and keep building out our network, we are confident we will be under 10 minutes for the majority of the customers within the next 45 days," Dhindsa said.

The e-grocery segment constitutes 4% of the $55-billion e-commerce industry. The foray of Tata Group with a majority acquisition of Big Basket as well as the launch of JioMart by Reliance last year have consolidated the $2-billion industry.

'Value e-commerce offers $40-bn market for firms'

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ New Delhi

Value–driven e-commerce presents a $40 billion market opportunity to players in the sector, with the rural population embracing digital shopping rapidly, a report released by the global consultancy firm, Kearney stated.

The changing consumer preferences moulded by the pandemic in addition to the value and budget consciousness has put value-e-commerce in the spotlight. Currently valued at $4 billion, value e-commerce is expected to grow rapidly to reach $20 billion by 2026 and to $40 billion by 2030 - a 10X growth in 10 years, as per the study.

Even as the regulations around the e-commerce industry undergoe changes, those are expected to have least impact on the user end as well as their preferences. "Value-conscious consumers are shifting to online buying, driven by huge adoption in mobile Internet – we estimate 350 million active internet users by 2026, of which nearly 90 million will be from rural India. These value-conscious consumers from Tier-2+ and rural areas will contribute to 38% of India's value e-commerce market demand by 2026. As these value consumers increase online buying, they tend to replicate their offline buying behaviour. Hence, there is a tremendous opportunity for players to craft a sharp value proposition around desirable quality at affordable price," Manoj Muthu Kumar, Principal, Kearney said.

CIL Q1 hit by high fuel, staff costs

State-run coal miner Coal India Ltd (CIL) has taken a hit to its first quarter profit margins primarily due to a sharp surge in fuel costs during the quarter combined with higher staff expenses. In fact, the company's chairman Pramod Agarwal said during a post-earnings analysts call that CIL had taken a dent of `700 crore due to higher diesel costs during the period. "In the quarter (under review), we lost about `700 crore as diesel prices increased by about 35%. It was in the range of `66-67 and now at around `89," Agarwal said.

Tata Steel interested in Vizag-based RINL: CEO

DOMESTIC steel giant Tata Steel is interested in acquiring state-owned Rashtriya Ispat Nigam Limited (RINL), the company's Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and Managing Director T V Narendran said.

RINL, under the Ministry of Steel, owns and operates a 7.3 million tonnes plant in Visakhapatnam, Andhra Pradesh. It holds the distinction of being India's first shore-based integrated steel plant.

The Cabinet Committee on Economic Affairs (CCEA) on January 27, gave its 'in-principle' approval for 100% disinvestment of government stake in RINL, also called Visakhapatnam Steel Plant or Vizag Steel, along with RINL's stake in its subsidiaries/joint ventures through strategic disinvestment by way of privatisation.

When asked about Tata Steel's interest in acquiring RINL, Narendran replied in affirmative.

"Yes! Also, because for inorganic growth for long product opportunities... There is a great opportunity because it is east as well as it is south, it is a coastal plant so there are many advantages...," he said.

DEEP STRESS

$20-bn Afghan economy stares at its biggest challenge yet: Avoiding the boneyard

ENS ECONOMIC BUREAU @ Hyderabad

WITH depleting cash reserves, absence of a domestic debt market and rising humanitarian needs amid job and income losses, recovery squarely depends on three factors — generosity of foreign donors sitting on the fence, Chinese bailout and (if) how the Taliban legitimises opium production and monetises mining operations.

Afghanistan has been surviving on foreign grants that finance 75% of public spending. A decade ago, donor funds were as high as 100% of GDP. Incidentally, this was also a period when Afghan economy grew at its finest pace averaging 9.4% between 2003 and 2012.

But as the Taliban intensified military and civilian attacks and as international troops started retreating, donor support halved to 42.9% of GDP in 2020, according to the World Bank. Consequently, GDP growth fell to 2.5% per annum starting 2015, while gains against development indicators started reversing.

Eventually, at the Geneva conference held last November, donors urged Afghanistan to play by the rules or not play at all. They did pledge financial support for 2021-2024, but not without riders.

First, they signed only single-year pledges (perhaps sensing government downfall following the US retreat) and second, they made future support conditional on combating corruption, reducing poverty, and advancing peace talks. These pacts may not hold water now, but Afghanistan needs money and how it secures financial aid will be keenly watched.

STATE OF AFFAIRS

Afghan economy grew averaging 9.4% between 2003 and 2012	Donor support reduced to 42.9% of GDP in 2020	Revenue collapsed from 14.1% of GDP in 2019 to 11.4% in 2020	Deficit touched 2.3% of GDP as against the budgeted 0.8% in 2020	Illicit opium trade, mining and exports accounted for $1.6 bn earning in FY20

Declining grants hauled the services sector, which accounts for 53% of GDP, into the sick bay, while the Covid-19 pandemic pushed agriculture and industry into a temporary coma. Domestic revenue collapsed from 14.1% of GDP in 2019 to 11.4% in 2020. Despite higher grants and lower-than-budget expenditure, overall deficit touched 2.3% of GDP as against the budgeted 0.8% in 2020.

The country's entire debt is external and given concerns of debt sustainability, it has two choices. Either get by with less help, which will deepen poverty, or comply with donor demands. The Taliban, however, may digress.

Taliban's ilicit trade

Illicit acitivity remains central to the Afghan economy and the Taliban thrives on it. According to a Nato report, Taliban's financial muscle deepened thanks to profits from the illicit opium trade, illegal mining and exports. It earned an estimated $1.6 billion in FY20.

It all began in 2000, when the Taliban banned poppy growing as its call for international legitimacy was tossed into the trashcan. That opened doors for a booming illicit narcotics trade, raking in an estimated 60% of its annual revenue, according to a US Special Inspector General report in May.

The World Bank too, in its country update in April, noted that the opium economy employs 119,000 Afghans, generating an estimated between $1.2-$2.1 billion revenue in 2019. That's 7-11% of GDP. Until now, this illicit activity deprived government of much-needed revenue, it added. Making this legitimate will lower Afghanistan's over-reliance on foreign aid.

Chinese bailout

China, the only country after Pakistan to recognize Taliban's political legitimacy, is central to growth. While China is within its rights to help Afghanistan in the reconstruction process, any unusual flow of Chinese funds could be a threat to India, which is already battling the Chinese at our borders.

China is heavily investing in Pakistan as part of the China-Pakistan Economic Corridor and its Afghan foray will further strengthen its might and weaken our limbs.

Currently, India and Pakistan are the top two destinations for Afghan goods accounting for 80% of total exports. But that changed last year. As the pandemic induced border closures reopened, exports to India remained relatively stable, but exports to China shot up by a staggering 78.5%, indicative of the changing market dynamics.

Lastly, Afghanistan reportedly holds an estimated $1-$3 trillion worth of minerals, including one of the world's largest deposits of rare earth elements used to produce military weaponry, batteries and others. A China-Afghan trade pact could be a significant drawback for India.

Exhaustion & fever force Neeraj to leave event midway

Exhaustion and "slight" fever forced star javelin thrower Neeraj Chopra to leave midway the welcome ceremony at his village near Panipat, organised to celebrate his gold at Tokyo Olympics. Chopra, who has been on a busy schedule since his return to the country after winning India's first Olympic medal in athletics, has taken a break to give his body some much-needed rest.

SIRAJ IN BIG LEAGUE

Hyderabad pacer, with his match haul of eight wickets in India's victory at Lord's, now appears to be a shoo-in for selection

VIVEK KRISHNAN @Chennai

IT has been common knowledge for the last three years that India have three pacers of the highest quality in their ranks: Jasprit Bumrah, Mohammed Shami and Ishant Sharma. Behind them was a solid battery of fast bowlers who weren't quite world-class but more than capable of coming in and doing a job. The likes of Mohammed Siraj, Umesh Yadav and Shardul Thakur were part of this ensemble that added depth to the fast bowling cartel – a necessity in order to fulfil India's lofty ambitions of Test domination. Over the last few months, Siraj seems to have made the graduation up a rung and now gives company to the redoubtable trio of Bumrah, Shami and Ishant.

The Lord's Test was the latest and surest indicator that Siraj now deserves to be a shoo-in for selection each time India pick a playing XI. In a set-up also comprising Bumrah, Shami and Ishant, it is perhaps the highest compliment. The 27-year-old from Hyderabad took eight wickets for 126 runs across the two innings — his best match figures in a fledgling career of seven Tests. It shouldn't really come as a surprise after Siraj's debut tour of Australia saw him take 13 wickets in three Tests.

At Lord's, where grizzled veterans can take adjusting to the notorious slope, Siraj had no such issues in his maiden experience of the venue. He looked completely at home, combining pinpoint accuracy and skill with his no-nonsense attitude. The eight scalps didn't include Joe Root, but he troubled England's best batsman more often than anyone else. And when he was taking wickets, he went off on celebratory runs with his index finger on the lips.

Siraj was asked about his celebration during the course of the Test. "This celebration is for the haters because they used to say a lot of things about me, that I cannot do this and cannot do that. So, I will only let my ball do the talking," was Siraj's response in his endearing and now familiar Hyderabadi dialect.

It reflects a confidence in his ability that those who have tracked him aren't surprised about. Former India wicketkeeper MSK Prasad is one such observer, having been the chairman of selectors when Siraj was brought into the India A set-up.

"Basically, he is a very confident guy. You give him the ball under any circumstances and he is one guy who will never shy away from giving his best. He has got that wicket-taking knack," Prasad tells this daily.

The wicket-taking knack came into prominence as soon as Siraj started playing red-ball games for India A. In 46 first-class games, he has 15 four-wicket hauls and five five-wicket hauls including a best of 8/59, which came against Australia A in September 2018. During this phase, it was becoming clear that here was a bowler cut out for the longest version.

India to face Pak in opener

India will start their T20 World Cup campaign with a meeting against Pakistan on October 24. Here's a brief look...

Super Sunday in Dubai

India vs Pakistan will kickoff the fixtures in Group 2 with a meeting at the Dubai International Stadium. It will be the first time that both of them will be facing each other since the 50-over World Cup in England in 2019. India of course haven't lost a single 50-over or 20-over WC match to Pakistan.

No Sharjah matches for India

After the Pakistan clash, India face fellow contenders New Zealand before a meeting against Afghanistan. The inaugural winners then complete their group obligations against two qualifiers from the first stage. What's interesting is that they will have no matches in Sharjah.

INDIA'S SCHEDULE

24 October India vs Pakistan Dubai 7.30 pm; 31 October India vs New Zealand Dubai 7.30 pm; 3 November India vs Afghanistan Abu Dhabi 7.30 pm; 5 November India vs B1 Dubai 7.30 pm; 8 November India vs A2 Abu Dhabi 7.30 pm; Final is scheduled for November 14 in Dubai

One step at a time is Reid's mantra

TANMAY DAS @Bhubaneswar

IT'S too early to predict what the men's team will do at the next Games in Paris. At least that's the thought echoed by current coach, Graham Reid. "We have to move step by step," he said during a function to felicitate the players here on Tuesday. "There is no doubt that the players are capable of winning any tournament. But our first target is to qualify the Paris Olympics. I am confident if they will put their best in future tournaments, this team will achieve more than the bronze medal," he added. The men's team can rubber-stamp their place at the Olympics by winning the Asian Games in Hangzhou, China, next year.

Captain Manpreet Singh said the team's energy could make a difference at the World Cup in early 2023. "In the last men's hockey World Cup we couldn't enter the semis," he said. "With this energetic men's team, we will make the difference at the World Cup." He added: "The way the Odisha Government is supporting hockey... an example for others in our country. I am hopeful state will support hockey in future."

Women's team skipper, Rani Rampal, said the team's next target is the Asian Games. "Have to target the Asian Games," she said. "Regarding the coaches (new coach Janneke Schopman will take over next month), everyone will have their own style and planning but the most important is that we have to implement the strategy on the ground."

CM awards hockey players

Meanwhile, chief minister Naveen Patnaik gave away 13 awards. While Harmanpreet Singh was awarded for scoring the maximum number of goals, PR Sreejesh won the award for maximum number of saves. Nilakanta Sharma won the player with maximum number of assists with Rupinder Pal Singh awarded for maximum number of defensive tackles.

Swimming nationals in Bengaluru in October

ASHIM SUNAM @Bengaluru

IT has been a tough time for aquatic sports, like many others, in India due to the Covid-19 situation. The national aquatic championships was cancelled, but the Swimming Federation of India hopes that the pandemic does not spoil their plans for 2021.

It has been confirmed that the senior national aquatic championships is scheduled to take place in Bengaluru from October 26-29 while the sub-junior and the junior nationals meet will be held in the same city from October 19-23. If all the swimming events are scheduled at Basavanagudi Aquatic Centre, diving and water polo will be held at Kensington Swimming Pool and Nettakallappa Aquatic Centre respectively. Also, as per the SFI general council decision, a swimmer can compete in only five individual events.

"It is good that, in the sense, we are planning to hold the nationals, but keeping our fingers crossed that there are no major lockdowns as there has been talks of third wave and so on. We do not want a washout of 2021 as well. A lot of swimmers are training as many states have allowed it, barring a few. We may have a slightly lower participation this time, and we may not have too many national records also, but we need to get the competition going , which is the most important. I know it may be a little unfair on some people, but you cannot have a two year break," said SFI secretary general Monal Chokshi.

It is after a long break they have something to look forward to in their events calendar. Many of the states have gradually started opening their pools, but some states' pools still remain shut and it could lead to less participants. The SFI, despite the plans, have their fingers crossed with an increase in Covid cases and the threat of a third wave always looming large.

BFC ready for ATK Mohun Bagan clash

ENS/AGENCIES@ Male

THERE is a strong Indian flavour in AFC Cup Group D, which includes Bengaluru FC, ATK Mohun Bagan, Bashundhara Kings and Maziya S&RC. And the two clubs from India are set to kick off proceedings in the group when they face one another at the National Stadium, in Male, Maldives, on Wednesday.

The Blues sealed their group stage berth two days ago after their 1-0 win over Club Eagles while Mariners qualified by virtue of Mohun Bagan's victorious 2019-20 I-League campaign. Sunil Chhetri and co, who had four-weeks preparation at the Inspire Institute of Sport in Bellary before reaching Maldives, did not have much recovery time from last match, but their opponents, who reached the host country on Saturday, are fresh. "Our last game was only two days ago, so it was a short recovery. It's not really an advantage, but I can see the glass either as half empty or half full, and I choose to see it half full....," said Blues' coach Marco Pezzaiuoli.

ISS sabotage bid by US astronaut: Russia report

Roscosmos says Serena Auñón-Chancellor drilled holes to force an early return to Earth in 2018; NASA disputes allegations

SPACE

WASHINGTON: NASA has hit back at Russian claims that a US astronaut drilled a hole in the International Space Station in 2018 to force an early return to Earth due to a psychological crisis. According to a report in TASS, the Russian state news agency, Roscosmos insiders claim there were multiple holes drilled by someone unfamiliar with the module design and without proper support.

They claim NASA astronaut Serena Auñón-Chancellor made the hole after a blood clot in her jugular vein that she had to treat herself, leading to an 'acute psychological crisis'.

The Russian space agency conducted an investigation into the hole in 2019 and compiled a dossier on the incident, but reports claim it will not disclose its findings.

The hole in the Soyuz spacecraft attached to the station was spotted on August 30, 2018, three months after it first docked, after crew spotted a decrease in air pressure, causing astronauts to rush to find the cause.

Just days prior to their return to Earth, the cosmonauts endured a gruelling spacewalk that lasted almost eight hours to investigate the hole, using knives and shears to carve into the side of the space station itself.

The crew discovered a 2-millimetre (0.08 inches) hole which caused the leak and plugged it with epoxy and gauze.

A tiny 2mm-wide hole (circled) was found to be responsible for the loss of valuable cabin pressure which was first detected on August 30, 2018

NASA claimed the astronauts on board were never in danger of suffocation due to the 'lifeboat' spacecraft attached to the station to provide a return to Earth.

Later, images and further investigation revealed the hole had been made from the inside, ruling out space debris as the cause. Sergey Prokopyev and two other astronauts, Serena Aunon-Chancellor of NASA and Alexander Gerst of the European Space Agency, were on board when it as detected.

NASA doesn't comment on medical matters but disputed the claim, describing the astronaut as extremely well respected and as making many invaluable contributions. August 2018 saw astronauts rush to fix a hole which had appeared in the outer wall of the Soyuz capsule on the orbiting laboratory. Its origins were, and still are, a mystery, despite accusations from all sides. It is thought the latest report may be Roscosmos deflecting accusations from NASA over the arrival of the Russian Science module sending the ISS in a spin in July. In response to the most recent allegations, said to come from Roscosmos, Bill Nelson, head of NASA posted on Twitter: "I fully support Serena."

The allegation against Aunon-Chancellor was made in an article published by TASS claiming to 'debunk' 12 things America claims about the Russian space agency. They report it would not have been possible for the damage to happen on Earth as the ship would never pass vacuum chamber tests, essential to be flight ready.

"If there were any holes in it, then the pressure in this ship would immediately drop and it would not pass the appropriate tests. Thus, Roscosmos immediately ruled out the version of damage to Soyuz-MS-09 on Earth," TASS reported. It then goes on to discuss the mental health of Aunon-Chancellor, suggesting she took drastic action to 'speed up her return to Earth'.

Kathy Lueders from NASA and responsible for the human spaceflight program said Serena was an "extremely well-respected crew member who has made invaluable contributions. I did not find this accusation credible".

Serena Auñón-Chancellor is an extremely well-respected crew member who has made invaluable contributions. I did not find this (Russian) accusation credible

Third shot for vaccinated US citizens likely

COVID

WASHINGTON: On a day Pfizer and BioNTech submitted preliminary clinical data to US health authorities to seek authorisation for a third dose of their Covid-19 vaccine for all Americans, the Washington Post on Monday night reported that the Biden administration was expected to announce that most vaccinated Americans would need booster shots. The push for a third shot comes amid a rise in cases driven by the delta variant.

The administration's health and science experts were coalescing around the view that people would need the boosters eight months after being fully vaccinated, the Washington Post reported. The administration of the boosters would begin in mid- or late September. More than 51% people have fully vaccinated in the US. Currently, the US has moved to authorise third doses only for some people with weakened immune systems. Last week, the United States approved the booster shot of Pfizer-BioNTech and Moderna vaccines for people with weakened immune systems.

Meanwhile, Pfizer and BioNTech presented the results of their Phase One trial that evaluated the safety and efficacy of a third shot. "The data we've seen to date suggest a third dose of our vaccine elicits antibody levels that significantly exceed those seen after the two-dose primary schedule," Albert Bourla, Pfizer's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, said in a statement.

"A booster vaccine could help reduce infection and disease rates in people who have previously been vaccinated and better control the spread of virus variants during the coming season," said BioNTech Co-founder Ugur Sahin.

Italy's iconic glacier's days are numbered

CLIMATE

ITALY: The Calderone ice formation in central Italy once laid claim to being the southernmost glacier in Europe — before it shrank and split into much-diminished glacierets. As climate change drives global temperatures ever higher, the glacier risks melting away into the geological record books altogether.

Situated in a deep valley in the Gran Sasso d'Italia, a massif in the Apennine Mountains, the Calderone glacier first split two decades ago. It became the southernmost glacier in Europe after the Corral del Veleta in the Sierra Nevada in Spain melted in the early 20th century. But since then it has been in headlong retreat: its volume reducing by around 90 percent between 1916 and 1990, according to a 2010 study in the Journal of Glaciology.

"This was the southernmost glacier in Europe and that's why it was an icon and a symbol, but now it is shrinking more and more," glaciologist Massimo Frezzotti told AFP. "We estimate it could disappear within the next 10-20 years," said Frezzotti.

Pi's value calculated to 62.8 trillion figures

RESEARCH

GENEVA: Swiss researchers said Monday they had calculated the mathematical constant pi to a new world-record level of exactitude, hitting 62.8 trillion figures using a supercomputer.

"The calculation took 108 days and nine hours" using a supercomputer, the Graubuenden University of Applied Sciences said in a statement. Its efforts were "almost twice as fast as the record Google set using its cloud in 2019, and 3.5 times as fast as the previous world record in 2020", according to the university's Centre for Data Analytics, Visualisation and Simulation.

Researchers are waiting for the Guinness Book of Records to certify their feat, until then revealing only the final ten digits they calculated for pi: 7817924264. The previous world-record pi calculation had achieved 50 trillion figures. Pi represents the ratio of a circle's circumference to its diameter, with an infinite number of digits following the decimal point.

Researchers nevertheless continue to push calculations for the constant — whose first 10 figures are 3.141592653 — ever further using powerful computers.

5 sec scan to track cancer cure progress

MEDICINE

LONDON: A hi-tech scan that takes just five seconds to perform can tell if chemotherapy is working in patients with breast cancer. The scan, which involves waving a hand-held probe resembling a shower head over the tumour site, can detect tiny changes that indicate whether it is responding to chemo drugs after just one round of treatment.

The breakthrough means women showing no early signs of improvement can be switched to other drugs or treatments, sparing them from the unnecessary and toxic side-effects of chemotherapy.

Currently, most patients undergoing chemo have to endure several weeks or months of treatment — often with debilitating side-effects, such as nausea, hair loss and extreme fatigue — before they find out whether their tumour has shrunk. The new technique could potentially slash that time to a matter of hours, allowing doctors to try other chemotherapy combinations or carry out surgery sooner in a bid to stop the cancer from spreading.

FACT OF THE MATTER

Bee venom to cure arthritis

STUDY

The sting from a honeybee may not feel like warm apple pie, but new research has revealed that angry bees produce better venom. Researchers at Curtin University studied bees at multiple sites across Australia, and identified 99 bee venom proteins. Interestingly, 'angry' bees - which were riled up using a shocking device - were found to produce a richer, more protein-dense bee venom. The team says this venom could help in the fight against Parkinson's and osteoarthritis. The so-called 'angry bees,' those that are considered more active, reacted better to the researchers' electrical stimulating devices, created with a glass plate and an electrical pulse system that produced a 'minimal shock' to the bees.

Moderna jab for 12-17 kids

VACCINE

Britain's medicines watchdog on Tuesday said it had approved the Moderna Covid-19 vaccine for children aged 12 to 17, after previously giving the green light to Pfizer. The Medicines and Healthcare products Regulatory Agency said in a statement that the jab was "safe and effective in this age group". But it added it would now be up to government advisory body the Joint Committee on Vaccination and Immunisation (JCVI) to recommend whether to start giving the jab. Britain began its mass vaccination programme in December last year and has to date seen nearly 90% of all adults receive a first dose. More than 77% have had two doses in Britain.

NUMBER LOVER

Sudoku maker Maki Kaji, who saw life's joy in puzzles, succumbs to cancer at 69

OBITUARY

TOKYO: Maki Kaji, the creator of the popular numbers puzzle Sudoku whose life's work was spreading the joy of puzzles, has died, his Japanese company said Tuesday. He was 69 and had bile duct cancer.

Known as the "Godfather of Sudoku," Kaji created the puzzle to be easy for children and others who didn't want to think too hard. Its name is made up of the Japanese characters for "number" and "single," and players place the numbers 1 through 9 in rows, columns and blocks without repeating them.

Ironically, it wasn't until 2004 when Sudoku became a global hit, after a fan from New Zealand pitched it and got it published in the British newspaper The Times. Two years later, Japan rediscovered its own puzzle as a "gyakuyunyu," or "reimport."

Kaji was chief executive at his puzzle company, Nikoli Co., until July and died Aug. 10 at his home in Mitaka, a city in the Tokyo metro area.

Maki traveled to more than 30 countries spreading his enjoyment of puzzles. Sudoku championships have drawn some 200 million people in 100 countries over the years, according to Tokyo-based Nikoli.

Sudoku was also never trademarked except within Japan, driving its overseas craze, Nikoli said.

"Kaji-san came up with the name Sudoku and was loved by puzzle fans from all over the world. We are grateful from the bottom of our hearts for the patronage you have shown throughout his life," the company said in a statement.

Originally, Sudoku was called "Suji-wa-Dokushin-ni-Kagiru," which translates to, "Numbers should be single, a bachelor." In recent years, Sudoku, believed to be the world's most popular pencil puzzle, has come out in digital versions.

Born in the main northern island of Hokkaido, Maki started Japan's first puzzle magazine after dropping out of Keio University in Tokyo. He founded Nikoli in 1983, and came up with Sudoku about the same time. Yoshinao Anpuku, who succeeded Kaji as Nikoli's chief executive, said Kaji made friends easily and had a "unique and playful approach toward life."

"Our mission is to pursue Maki's vision and possibilities," Anpuku said.

Nikoli has provided original puzzles to more than 100 media companies, 10 of them foreign ones.

Major Japanese newspaper Mainichi in its obituary credited Kaji for starting the puzzle sections at bookstores, as well as introducing the word "Sudoku" into the Oxford English dictionary.

Kaji is survived by his wife Naomi and two daughters. Funeral services have been held among close family. A separate memorial service is being arranged by Nikoli, but details were still undecided.

DRESSING DOWN

Celeb designer Sabyasachi Mukherjee's new collection might have flown off the shelf within seconds of going live, but it has now sparked a debate, with revivalists questioning why local artisans haven't been involved

ANILA KURIAN

FASHION designer Sabyasachi Mukherjee's collaboration with Swedish fast-fashion brand H&M has been the talk of the town since last week. Fashion enthusiasts and influencers are embracing it, netizens are trolling the 'Wanderlust' collection, and now 15 Indian crafts' associations and collectives have written an open letter to the popular designer, explaining how artisans could have benefited from his business venture had they been involved. The Crafts Council of India, Crafts Council of Karnataka and the All India Artisans' and Craftworkers' Welfare Association are part of the letter.

Speaking to CE, Meera Goradia, co-founder of Creative Dignity, a network of artisans, craft associations and stakeholders, and a signatory to the letter, says, "We are not against Sabyasachi or the work he's done, but for a designer who stands up for Indian crafts and says he's on a mission to promote the craft, he should have utilised the resources we have in the country. Saying you're inspired by traditional art and then producing a digital edition of it is not right."

The letter points out the damages artisans have had to go through since the British appropriated the designs and weaves to replicate them on their machines. "It has continued in various forms – whether power looms imitating handlooms, digital prints selling as hand-painted artworks, design vocabularies appropriated without credit or compensation to the communities that have held it together for all these centuries," the letter reads.

In light of the pandemic, artisans have lost jobs. A global collection such as this, could have employed the struggling artisans, feel revivalists. Pavithra Muddaya from Vimor Handloom Foundation, says, "It's a missed opportunity because all Sabyasachi had to do was use his position and influence to help the community that's in dire need."

According to Prasad Bidapa, textile revivalist and curator of heritage weeks, there were several ways Sabyasachi could have worked out his new collection. "The worst thing to do to any Indian print is to digitise it. You're immediately putting it in a chemical territory, mass making it and losing the soul that artisans tend to put in otherwise. He can still rectify this by buying fabrics from the artisans. He can use handlooms and hand blocks to produce more," he says.

Since the letter that was made public on Monday, Sabyasachi responded with a two-page statement that read, "For me, Indian crafts and the artisanal belong in the world of luxury, not on the high street. I cannot dilute my commitment to the craftspeople who I have supported and worked so closely with for over two decades. With dedicated patronage of Indian crafts, there is a need to price and position the artisanal correctly and to make it synonymous with luxury; this doesn't just create a more economically sustainable model, but also incentivises the next generation of craftspeople."

Countering this, Goradia says, "His approach that craft can only be luxury is very westernised. That's not how it existed in India. Be it from exports to boutiques and art, highstreet has existed and helped millions. But by saying that craft is only for luxury, he's reducing the scope of work. Artisans are the second largest workforce of our country."

Suggesting damage control mechanisms, Goradia says perhaps the designer and the western brand can help the artisans now with a share of the profit if not included in the process. "We want to give artisans an opportunity to be able to survive during this pandemic," Goradia says.

Sabyasachi Mukherjee's much-anticipated collection was launched last week

'The writing has been on the wall for sometime'

Best-selling author Samhita Arni, who worked in Afghanistan, recounts tales of horror and hope she experienced

I was fascinated by Afghanistan from a young age. I grew up partly in Pakistan – my father served in the Indian consulate in Karachi – and from that time itself I had heard stories of the Northern Alliance and Mujaheedeen. Later on, growing up, through my father I met Afghans who frequented Delhi. Some even had been Mujaheedeen fighters who fought against the Soviet invasion, and spoke of a different Kabul - in the '70s when Kabul had discos, and was a vibrant exciting place.

I yearned to visit and see this place for myself. I read of the amazing work of Saad Mohseni, the founder of the MOBY network – the first media network in Afghanistan after the Taliban. The shows he had produced had a transformative place – using media to create cultural transformation. A cousin, who worked at USAID, put me in touch with MOBY. Things didn't work out at first, but a few years later, they offered me a position working with them as a scriptwriter for a TV show. Indian shows are very popular in Afghanistan and an Indian scriptwriter would be a good fit to come on board to help develop a series. And that is how I ended up in Afghanistan and worked on the show from October 2012 to April 2013.

The fiction-based show, called The Defenders, was based on the Afghan Security Forces. The work was very exciting. I met a cross section of Afghan society. We may not realise this here in India, but Afghan culture is multi-ethnic, diverse. Our office reflected this diversity - I was an Indian girl dropped into a multi-ethnic Afghan office where you have the Hazaras, Tajiks, Pashtuns, all working together. Some of my colleagues had lived through Taliban years and told me heart-rending stories. Others had spent years in refugee camps in Pakistan, or had studied in India, or had fled Afghanistan for Iran, and returned. Everyone was resilient and courageous. It was easy for an Indian girl to get by - almost everyone in Kabul spoke Hindu or Urdu. The office I worked in reflected the most liberal and progressive phase of Afghanistan.

As part of the preparation for the series, we auditioned a number of young women for roles in the show. This was when I got to meet the sassy, confident, fun-loving young women of Kabul – who had great dreams, ambition and who loved their fashion. This would have been unthinkable, prior to 2001. And some of these young women completely defied my expectations – I met a young female rapper who was incredibly talented. I heard of a band 'Burka Blue'- young college-going women who performed rock in blue burqas.

But yes, of course, it was unsafe. Every week, there would be an attack or threat on the TV station that I worked at. We'd hear bombs go off - windows and doors would rattle. There were people I knew who were kidnapped or lost their lives. Helicopters would pass overhead often, and the windows would start rattling. It was frightening, but this is the reality that everyone in Kabul lives with.

I am shocked and deeply upset by the situation in Afghanistan. On some level, the writing has been on the wall for sometime – ever since the Americans decided to pull out, this has been inevitable. Yet, I didn't expect to happen so fast – literally overnight. The same day when India got Independence, the Afghan women lost theirs. I've heard stories of friends stuck at the airport. They were working policy, journalism and media - and I am worried that if they remain in Afghanistan, they and their families will be targeted by the Taliban. I hoping and praying that they get out.

EKA PADA KOUNDINYASANA I

(POSE DEDICATED TO THE SAGE KOUNDINYA I)

In Sanskrit, 'eka' means one, 'pada' means foot, Koundinya is the name of a sage and 'asana' means pose. The strong twist that is initiated by the legs stimulates the digestive organs and rejuvenates the spine. It helps improve the balance and focus. It is traditionally practised by entering into the tripod headstand. Try to get the knees far up the triceps of the opposite arm before bending the elbows so that the core is fully engaged and the leg is less likely to slide down, making more work of the arms.

STEPS

- Come into a squatting position. Remain on the balls of your feet and lean forward to place your hands flat on the floor.
- Place your feet in such a way that your knees face the left side of your body. Keeping your head up, lean forward.
- Bend your elbows at 90 degrees and simultaneously press into the palms to form a shelf.
- Place the side of your right knee on the shelf created by the left hand. To lift off the feet, shift your weight forward.
- Exhale and take your left leg straight behind and right leg forward.
- Feel the stretch in the groin and keep the feet flexed throughout the pose.
- Keep the gaze forward.
- Remain here for some time and then return lowering the legs and releasing the pressure from the palms.
- Perform the same steps on the other side.

BENEFITS

- Massages abdominal organs and keeps them healthy.
- Healthy for the spine.
- Strengthens neck and arms.
- Improves alertness and concentration.
- Enhances sense of balance.
- Strengthens and stretches leg muscles.
- Help digestive organs become strong and healthy.
- Stimulates prana flow at the naval region, which results in the activation of the Manipura (Navel) Chakra.

LIMITATIONS

- Those who have wrist or lower back injuries or pain must avoid this pose.
- Beginners should not attempt it until they have enough practise.
- Don't let your sternum collapse forward – while lifting your body and coming out of the pose.

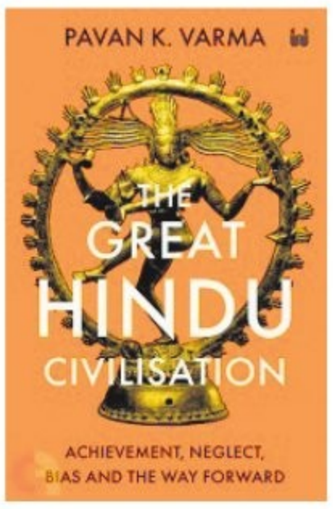
'NOTHING CAN EQUAL THE SEED SOWN BY OUR ANCESTORS'

Pavan Varma, author and politician

WHY did a civilisation, with Hinduism, or Hindu Dharma, or the Hindu way of life at its core, survive from millennia before to the present, when most ancient civilisations elsewhere exist today only as archaeological artefacts, museum relics or historical memories? Ancient Mesopotamia, Egypt, Greece and China were great civilisations of their times, broadly contemporaneous with the Indian civilisation, but have ceased to exist as a living tradition, whereas the Hindu civilisation, in spite of so many vicissitudes, has survived, and continues to shape the lives of its followers. It is true that Hindu civilisation too may not exist in exactly the same way as in the past-in some ways that is good, and in others unfortunate. But most of its central tenets and beliefs are a part of the lives of Hindus, and essentially constitute a living tradition.

TURNING PAGES



To pose this question is not to propound a case for Hindu superiority, or downplay the achievements of the other foundational civilisations, great in their own time. The purport behind this question is to try and understand, without prejudice of any kind, why Hindu civilisation showed the resilience to survive. The attempt to answer this question goes to the core of what that Hindu civilisation was, how it was conceived, how it evolved and why it did not become confined to the walls of a museum. As Mahatma Gandhi says: 'I believe that the civilization India has evolved is not to be beaten in the world. Nothing can equal the seed sown by our ancestors. Rome went, Greece shared the same fate, the might of the Pharaohs was broken, Japan has become westernized, of China nothing can be said, but India is still, somehow or the other, sound at the foundation

Gandhi wrote these words in 1909 in his first book, Hind Swaraj. At that time he was agitated by British attempts to downplay India's ancient heritage and claim the Western civilisational model as the most superior. The contextual background to what he wrote notwithstanding, the basic thought he voiced needs to be further probed. Was this survival just happenstance, a quirk of evolution, a historical coincidence, a luck of the draw played by time? Or, was there more to it, and if so, what? What were those factors that coalesced in such a way so as to enable this survival? Was there something intrinsically different in the way this civilisation was structured ab initio that prevented it from fading away into oblivion? Were there elements within it, so constituted from the very beginning, that gave it the resilience to withstand direct and indirect attempts to vanquish it? Were the strengths that enabled it to persist random, or the result of a conscious application of mind? These are questions to which we must seek answers, not in terms of definitive or absolute truths, but in the nature of a deliberation, a contemplative examination, leaving enough room for other views and opinions

I will argue that the great strength of this civilisation was that it began its journey in overwhelmingly cerebral terms. It grappled first with ideas, processes of thought and the realm of concepts, before it created the civilisation associated with it. The compressed cerebral energy-with few parallels in the world-that shaped its foundations played a deeply influential role in the material superstructure that followed. The depth and insight of the original ideation influenced all aspects of the civilisation. It was internalised as thought, before it actualised as artefact or secular construct.

The dialectic between idea and form, concept and practice, enabled the ideological world view to survive even if the form was destroyed, and the form to persist even when ideation momentarily ebbed.

In other words, the Hindu civilisation was founded, first and foremost, on the audacity of thought. There were, undoubtedly, derogations and distortions of that thought in subsequent times.

But even so, the intensity of that initial application of mind, and the fact that over time it percolated down in a myriad forms to the level of the ordinary person, provided a protective shield to ensure survival. Civilisations die when their animating thought impulses wither or are overwhelmed.

The Hindu civilisation's thought processes were never overwhelmed, even when its people were conquered.

'Overnight, it feels like every progress is wiped out'

IN 2012, there were women who were educated, working, earning money and living independently. There has been tremendous change, particularly for women, but this has taken time to effect - and education has been key to this. Now, literally overnight, it feels like every progress will wiped out. If this is anything like what the Taliban was like last time - and I think it will be - women who are educated, professional, financially independent, will literally be forced to be at home, under house arrest, 'property' of their male guardians. Their rights - that they have enjoyed for two decades - will be taken away from them. They will be denied dignity, respect and worth. They will not be treated as human beings. They are burning their educational certificates. According to reports, the burqa price has skyrocketed, everyone is desperately trying to buy one. I don't know if it is a realistic judgement, but I feel the American government just betrayed them, particularly the women. Everyone has abandoned the country, it's awful and shocking. It just makes me angry.

The Woman In Me by Dr Chandra Vadhana aka Dr Cee Vee delves into various emotions one goes through

Navigating the labyrinth of life

SNEHA JOHN

POETRY has always served as a gateway to the many-layered soul. At times, it resonates the writer's efforts to encapsulate the essence of entity, navigating the labyrinth of life. Woman In Me, by the anthology of poems by Dr Chandra Vadhana who writes under the pen name Dr Cee Vee, is in her words, the progeny of "a mind that travels through the wilderness of life, love and moments". The poet eloquently dovetails diverse experiences of feminine consciousness and succeeds in making these moments universal for the reader. Each layer of poetic petals is neatly enfolded by the sepals called Life, Womanhood, Romantic Love, Missing, Moments, Sorrow and Places and Nature.

The first poem 'Enigma' serves as a prologue to the arduous endeavour to expose the enigmatic self. She then proceeds to portray her baffled soul caught between extreme emotions. The pervasive thirst of the poetic psyche and the desperate attempts to quench it by surpassing the monotony of daily life are quite evident as we flip through the pages. For the poet, love is a penance, focused and devoted, something that the lover most often fails to reciprocate with the same intensity and honesty. Some lines speak volumes about the double standards of society that compartmentalised femininity and masculinity. 'Gentleman Love' is a didactic dramatic monologue as the narrative voice goes on to educate the silent listener on the vitality of respecting femininity. Nature metaphorically represents human life and the poet's journey outside, to nature, also becomes a part of the soul searching. Journeys, people and monuments that made a lasting impression on the writer's mind also find a space in her work.

All proceeds from The Woman in Me go to non-profit organisation Prayaana Labs working towards women empowerment and skill development in developing countries. Her previous work The Girl in Me, also available on Amazon, was published in 2019.

Journey Of I-Day Celebrations

URBAN BOURBON
Hriday Ranjan
Writer, comedian

AUGUST 15 gave me an opportunity to ponder over the nature of our Independence Day celebrations. Even the mention of the date August 15th will spark a subtle smile inside you. August 15th evokes different emotions at different points of an Indian's life.

Since most school terms start in June or July, Independence Day is an early break in the seemingly cruel system of the academic year. The day required that we woke up early and rushed to school - but without any pressure to study or produce homework. Instead, we were made to stand in lines and sing the anthem. No surprise tests, no combined periods of mathematics either. Against the backdrop of pictures of Gandhi and Ambedkar, I remember feeling goosebumps while singing the National Anthem. This was followed by 'sweet distribution', which usually consisted of a ladoo or a Maha Lacto. The rest of the day was spent in playing or loitering about.

As I reached middle school, Independence Day became a big deal at our home. My sister was an exceptional NCC cadet and had been selected to participate in the Independence Day parade in New Delhi. Lacking the physical abilities or temperament for such endeavours, Independence Day for me mostly meant lounging at home and watching television.

I would watch the Independence Day parade, complete with the sterile commentary by All India Radio broadcasters. Since August 15 is a national holiday, the authorities at Doordarshan would halt the regular, trusted programming and include a number of surprises. This included a patriotic film, new songs being shown, or an interview with a famous cricketer or sportstar. Once cable television entered our lives, Independence Day gave me a chance to catch up on the patriotic movies that I'd missed through the year. Whether they were war films like Border, or the hero conducting a surgical strike in films like Tirangaa - patriotic films are essentially entwined with the idea of Independence Day celebrations.

As adults, our relation with Independence Day is rather different. Without the innocence of a flag hoisting at school, or the lazy nonchalance of watching a patriotic film on television, the first thing we do when we come across the date is to check what day it falls on. There are desperate attempts to club the day with weekends, or to slip in a sick-leave so that we get a chunk of holidays.

This year, Independence Day fell on a Sunday, crushing the hopes of thousands of IT employees who were chalking up a Goa plan. The other important matter for me as an adult is that Independence Day is a dry-day. Which means at the stroke of the midnight hour, while the nation prepares to celebrate another birthday, I have to rush around and stock up on booze by requesting bootleggers.

For people with less hedonistic lifestyles, Independence Day has transformed into a day of commercialism. E-commerce websites dust off products from their shelves and polish them with discounts. Malls and supermarkets put up balloons in tricolour and try to entice us with schemes. Whether you like it or not, Independence Day today has transformed from a day of remembrance, to a day when consumerist fetishes are realised.

But this year was different. As the heartbreaking news of Afghanistan falling to the Taliban reached us on Independence Day, I realised the true value of being a citizen in a free nation. I'm not usually an emotional person, but I must say this - 'Happy Belated Birthday, India!'.

Sai Pallavi

MANSORE IN TALKS WITH SAI PALLAVI FOR A POLITICAL THRILLER

CE FEATURES

DIRECTOR Mansore's Act 1978 not only received appreciation during the theatrical run but received critical acclaim during its digital release too. The success of Act 1978, which stars Yagna Shetty in the lead role, also caught the attention of the Telugu film industry. The National award-winning director has been approached by a few filmmakers from Telugu cinema, and the latest we hear is that the director is in talks with Sai Pallavi for a political thriller.

Confirming this development, Mansore said that the discussion is at a very preliminary stage, and he has just had a telephonic discussion with the actor. "She is impressed with the subject and has asked me to send the final script. I have taken a short break for my marriage, and will soon be getting back to work on the political subject," says Mansore. The actor tied the knot with Akhila on August 15 in the presence of family and friends.

> The ACT 1978 director, who has had his first round of telephonic discussion, says it is a universal subject and holds good for all south Indian languages

The director, who is keen to work with the Fidaa actor, reveals that the script has been inspired by actual incidents that have taken place in Karnataka. However, he adds that the content is universal and will hold good for all South Indian languages and hopes the film with Sai Pallavi will soon come together. Meanwhile, the Telugu and Hindi remake rights of Act 1978 have been sold, and the casting for both projects is currently in process.

LASYA NAGARAJ IS HAPPY TO BE PART OF DRISHYA 2

A SHARADHAA

LASYA Nagaraj, who is known for her glamorous avatars in Sandalwood so far, is glad to have bagged a performance-oriented film like Drishya 2. Starring Ravichandran in the lead, and directed by P Vasu, Drishya 2 is the remake of the Mohanlal-starrer Drishyam 2, which released earlier this year.

Without revealing details about her role, Lasya says, "I am extremely happy to be part of a big star cast. From the time I made my entry into the film industry, I have been waiting to be part of a project that offered me a performance-oriented role for a long time. I always wanted to be in an exciting character that is far away from the real me. This is something I got to experience while playing this role," says Lasya, who was part of a 15-day schedule in Coorg, which she recently wrapped up. "After playing a fair share of bubbly characters, playing such a role was challenging," adds Lasya.

Lasya with Ravichandran

Lasya reveals that it was her ad with Puneeth Rajkumar that caught the attention of director Vasu. "Initially even the director was skeptical because the input given about me was that I have mostly done only glamourous characters. But then after watching the ad, and seeing my performance while shooting, he said casting me was the right choice. I was happy to receive such positive feedback from the veteran director," says Lasya.

Apart from Drishya 2, she also has Pruthvi Ambaar-starrer Life is Beautiful in the pipeline. The actor is also busy with two more projects. "One story is about a father-daughter relationship, and I am sharing screen space with senior actor, Sharath Lohitashwa. The other project is a female-oriented script, shooting for which will begin in September," she says.

Akshay Kumar along with co-star Lara Dutta on the challenges of BellBottom, which opens in cinemas on Aug 19

'WE HAVE TO BALANCE DIGITAL AND THEATRE RELEASES'

Lara Dutta

SHILAJIT MITRA

BEYOND their past 12 collaborations, Akshay Kumar and Lara Dutta are the closest of friends. So when Akshay called her up for BellBottom, asking if she'd like to play Indira Gandhi, Lara thought he was joking. "He is known for his pranks and I thought this was one of those," Lara recalls. Instead, Akshay was dead serious. The makers, he told her, wanted someone with a certain gravitas to portray the role. Lara seemed to fit the bill. "She was convinced in 2.15 minutes," Akshay says matter-of-factly.

Next came the prosthetics. Vikram Gaikwad, a three-time National Award-winning make-up artist, created the pieces in-house, basing them on a mould of Lara's face. It was a lengthy process, but the real surprise came on the day of the look test. "I don't blame people for not recognising me in the trailer because I didn't recognise myself," Lara laughs. "Even her husband (Mahesh Bhupathi) couldn't recognise her," Akshay adds.

The moment was also special in another way. Lara's father, LK Dutta, is a retired Wing Commander who'd flown Indira Gandhi several times. Growing up, she'd hear stories of the former Prime Minister and how she was with her team. "It meant a lot when my dad saw my look and said it was convincing," Lara shares.

Akshay Kumar

Directed by Ranjit M Tiwari, Bellbottom revisits a string of hijackings that took place in the 80s. The event in question seems to be the 1984 Flight 421 hijacking, done by Khalistani separatists against the Indira Gandhi regime. In the film, Akshay's cool-headed RAW agent is called in to tackle the crisis, trotting from Delhi to London to Dubai and Abu Dhabi. "Our film is about how the early RAW agents operated," Akshay elaborates. "It explores how they lived, trained... the kind of operations they did. It's taken from true events we know nothing about."

Akshay, of course, has played a spy before, leading a tactical mission in Neeraj Pandey's Baby (2015). The actor says it's rare to come across a great espionage script. "I think wit is more important than physical action in the spy world. There are spies with paunches since they have to blend in. They can't appear too fit otherwise they'll be caught."

A still from the film

He brushes off comparisons with films like Baby and Airlift—or prior hijack dramas like Ram Madhvani's Neerja. "The stakes are markedly different in BellBottom," Akshay stresses. "It's about the loopholes the agents found. They only had time till sunset to rescue the hostages. There was a lot of diplomatic pressure from the country they were in..."

Bellbottom was the first international production to go on floors last year. The film was shot in Glasgow, London and Delhi. The actors observed mandatory quarantines, and shot within strict restrictions. Many of them, Akshay and Lara included, brought their families along. "I knew my daughter will be safer around me than if I left her back," Lara recalls, praising producer Vashu Bhagnani for the 'huge gamble' he took by restarting production. "It's inconceivable to make such a large scale film during the pandemic," Akshay says. "Our producers arranged everything from planes, guns, cars and tanks..."

A bigger gamble, however, might be the decision to release the film theatrically, with markets still recovering and several states extending shutdowns. Akshay's last film, the horror-comedy Laxmii, was released digitally on Disney+ Hotstar. Would he consider another online release in the future? "Yes... I mean OTT is here to stay, so are theatres. We just have to balance it."

On that note, any word on Sooryavanshi, the Rohit Shetty behemoth he completed in 2019 but is yet to unleash on fans? "You should ask him," Akshay laughs, pointing to film publicist and Shetty collaborator Parag Desai. "Maybe after Maharashtra opens up," Parag ventures, and is promptly echoed by Akshay. "Maybe after Maharashtra..."
